Carswell Gives Testimony On Bid For High Court Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge G. Harold Carswell says he never has and never will accept fees for off-the-bench activities and if confirmed as a Supreme Court justice would willingly disclose his financial affairs.

The federal appeals court judge was closely questioned about his views of judicial ethics and race during Tuesday's opening Senate Judiciary Committee hearings into his high court nomination.

Carswell, who was called back for another round of questioning today, told the senators he "definitely" thought the same standards should apply to Supreme Court justice as to all other federal judges.

At the start of the hearings the 50-year-old southerner, confirmed by the Senate last June as a judge on the 5th U.S. Court of Appeals, swore he is no racist.

"I have no notions, secretive, open or otherwise, of racial superiority," he testified in repudiating a 1948 political speech supporting white supremacy.

Carswell said he wouldn't expect the committee to vote for his confirmation if the members thought he harbored ideas of that kind.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., in raising questions of judicial ethics, told Carswell he wanted to know what his standards would be "if your nomination is confirmed, which I think it will be."

Bayh, who led the fight against Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., President Nixon's first nominee for the Supreme Court post, later told newsmen his comment didn't necessarily mean he was going to vote for Carswell.

Carswell, who lives in Tallahassee, Fla., was nominated by Nixon Jan. 19 for the Supreme Court seat vacated by Abe Fortas last May.

Haynsworth, rejected by the Senate 55 to 45 last November, not only had stiff labor and civil rights opposition but also was pictured by Bayh and others as giving an appearance of impropriety because of stock transactions while on the bench.

Carswell, also opposed by labor and civil rights groups, testified he owns no stocks or bonds and told the committee that "certainly a judge should not sit in a case where there is an appearance of impropriety."

Report 3 Hired Gunmen Used In Yablonski Slayings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sources close to the Yablonski family slaying investigation said today three hired gunmen killed the United Mine Workers official and his wife and daughter, and that a fourth man who backed out of the assignment was in custody.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, in a copyright story in today's editions, said the killers were promised $1,700 apiece. The story added that the triple slaying stemmed from "a personal beef" not connected with union matters.

Other developments reported by the Plain Dealer and other sources:

—Navy deep-sea divers found a .38-caliber pistol Tuesday in the Monongahela River about five miles from the Clarksville, Pa., home where Joseph A. Yablonski, 59, his wife, Margaret, 57, and daughter, Charlotte Joanne, 25, were slain.

—FBI agents extended their investigation into the Kentucky and Tennessee coal mine fields where Yablonski, a rebel leader in the UMW was a household name among miners.

Drug Control Changes Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate debate on the drug control bill moved into its final stages today with a battle over lowering federal penalties for possession and use of marijuana.

Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, in proposing more liberalized treatment of marijuana users said Tuesday the government should work more to rehabilitate drug offenders.

However, Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., chief sponsor of the omnibus drug control measure, said "this is not a rehabilitation bill. This is a law enforcement bill. These amendments would take the heart out of this legislation."

The Hughes amendment was aimed at trimming in half the original bill's penalty provisions of a possible $5,000 fine or up to one year in jail for a first conviction of marijuana possession.

The Dodd bill also sharply differentiated between the casual user of marijuana—or the college student who sells a few marijuana cigarettes to friends at cost—and the professional trafficker in hard narcotics.

Under the bill a professional criminal who derives a substantial percentage of his income from drug sales can be sentenced to a first offense from five years to life in prison and be fined up to $50,000. Further convictions are dealt with even more harshly.

Hughes amendment was not aimed at the professional pusher penalties.

Hughes introduced his amendment after a three-day fight ended over an attempt by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., to eliminate a provision allowing government agents to raid without warning a home where drugs are suspected being used or stored.

Metzenbaum Gains
AFL-CIO Support

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Dayton-Miami Valley AFL-CIO has endorsed Cleveland attorney Howard Metzenbaum's candidacy for the Democratic Senate nomination.

The council, representing some 60,000 AFL-CIO members, said Metzenbaum has shown "continued concern for the working man and social welfare legislation."

Women's Rights Leader Wants Law Changed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State laws aimed at protecting working females tend to discriminate rather than protect, the House Commerce and Labor Committee was told today.

Miss Sonia Pressman, an attorney with the federal Equal Opportunity Commission, said the laws are in conflict with the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The federal law, she said, bars discrimination on the basis of sex as well as color or national origin.

Miss Pressman testified on behalf of four bills that would repeal Ohio laws regarding women. Rep. Robert A. Manning, R-94 Akron, sponsored the bills.

Efforts to change Ohio laws on the subject failed in the Senate last year. Most opponents to the efforts were working women.

House Votes On RMN Veto; Want Compromise Assured

FIRST TELEVISION VETO — President Nixon re-enacts, for news photographers, his veto of a $19.7 billion health and education measure passed by Congress, after actually vetoing the bill on television, a U. General Angry; Planes Lost Due To Running Out Of Gas

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force planes have been running out of gas and crashing and the top Air Force general says it looks to him like "a lack of professionalism and discipline."

As a result, Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force chief of staff, has cracked down with orders to tighten up on supervision.

"Recent accidents and incidents caused by fuel depletion indicate a lack of professionalism and discipline," Ryan said in a message to all major command.

Fuel depletion is a euphemism for running out of gas.

Ryan said "these occurrences have included all models of aircraft from fighter to four-engine jet aircraft" and have occurred under conditions involving both visual and instrument flight conditions.

"Adequate operational supervision would have prevented the loss of these aircraft," Ryan said.

Air Force officers said Ryan appeared to be leveling criticism at base operations officers and squadron commanders, among others.

Ryan's statement came just over two weeks after his own son, Capt. John D. Ryan Jr., 29, was killed when his F4 fighter-bomber crashed on take off from Hamilton Air Force Base, Calif.

The plane has been recovered from San Pablo Bay, and there has been no official report on the cause of the crash.

Gen. Ryan made no reference to his son's death in the order.

According to the Air Force, there were 10 planes lost last year due to "fuel depletion."

The Air Force chief of staff told his commanders that recent spot effectiveness checks by the Air Force inspector general "have found common deficiencies, highlighting a trend toward poor supervision and disregard regulations and technical orders."

Therefore, Ryan ordered his commanders to undertake a complete review of their procedures "to insure adequate flight planning and supervision and adherence to the requirements for adequate fuel reserves."

The Air National Guard passed on Ryan's message to its units, and added some advice of its own.

"We must impress upon our pilot that directives and procedures can go so far . . . there can be no substitute for common sense," the National Guard Bureau said.

Rhodes Eyes Expanded Ohio Border

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky Gov. Louie B. Nunn and Ohio Gov. James Rhodes held a non-committal discussion Tuesday over Rhodes' proposal that the states change their common border to the middle of the Ohio River.

Nunn indicated he might propose a resolution for the Kentucky General Assembly to invite Rhodes to address lawmakers and present his case.

The state lines traditionally extend to the low water mark of the river on the Ohio side. This means that Kentucky bears many financial burdens Ohio does not—such as constructing and maintaining bridges to cope with water pollution.

Rhodes and Nunn are both Republicans, Rhodes a candidate for the U.S. Senate this year.

"This is not politics," Rhodes said at a news conference outside the mansion. "It's jobs for people and nothing else . . . it's not Democratic and it's not Republican."

He said any agreement on the border should include fishing, hunting, trapping, boating, licensing, management and enforcement.

He said a compact would enable both states to share equally the cost of bridges and would enhance the industrial potential of the Ohio valley.

Wilson Sits In On NSC Meeting At White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today accorded Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain the privilege of sitting in on a meeting of the National Security Council—the President's top-most advisory board on national security and foreign policy affairs.

The NSC session preceded another meeting of the President and prime minister set for shortly before noon.

The NSC meetings are so hush hush that the White House seldom discloses even the general topic up for consideration. And the invitation to Wilson to sit in underscored the depth of Anglo-American relations at the top level.

Wilson, expressing encouragement over talks with Nixon, noted Tuesday night that for the first time in years "international economic relationships are more settled."

GE Strike In 4th Month; Workers Hurting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As the General Electric Co. strike enters its fourth month, there reportedly has been only a trickle of back-to-work sentiment, but a widening ripple of fringe economic effects and a general belt tightening by 130,000 idle production workers. Salary losses have mounted into the tens of millions of dollars.

"People are buying cheaper cuts of meat, thinner slices, stretching as much as they can," said Bud Fitzner, manager of a supermarket in Louisville, Ky., where GE wage losses are estimated at $26 million.

Pickets in Louisville still get free bean soup every morning from Frank Davis, who has a restaurant near the plant. But he said the strike is costing him $200 a day in business losses.

Limited back to work action was reported in Chicago, Lake-side, Vt., and Ontario, Calif. But the vast majority of GE strikers apparently were sticking with the walkout.

The strikers were getting by in most cases with part-time jobs, savings, credit, strike benefits, unemployment insurance payments or welfare assistance.

About 1,100 workers at the Owensboro, Ky., GE plant are not on strike, but are being laid off for lack of materials. Lay-offs in related industries were reported in Syracuse, N.Y., and Albuquerque, N.M.

A labor-backed national boycott of GE products appeared to have elicited a questionable response, at least in most areas surveyed by The Associated Press. However, some union officials claimed it is being felt by the nation's fourth largest industrial giant.

GE officials have cited several instances during the strike in which they say radical groups

—most frequently the Students for a Democratic Society—have been welcomed on picket lines by strikers. However, union officials have insisted that where such groups were spotted strikers have ejected them from picket lines.

The strike of 12 unions began Oct. 26, spearheaded by the electrical workers and the independent United Electrical Workers. They rejected a company offer of a 20 cents an hour wage increase in the first year of a three-year contract, with wage reopeners in each subsequent year. Wages averaged $3.25 an hour.

Most GE plants in 135 cities remained open with nonunion employees. But production was all but halted in most of them.

In Washington, as it has since the strike began, the Pentagon declined to discuss effects of the walkout on military materiel.

However, at GE's nuclear energy division in San Jose, Calif., 330 of 475 union employees were reported on the job, augmented by 2,500 nonunion workers. The company called production normal—the unions disagreed.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's veto of the $19.7 billion health-education money bill was upheld today as the House rejected an effort to override it.

The result was a solid victory for Nixon in his sharpest confrontation yet with the Democratic controlled Congress. The President said a veto was necessary because the $12.26 billion which Congress added to the bill for health and education programs was inflationary.

The over-all bill finances the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare, and various antipoverty programs.

Republican Dissidents Hold Key

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Republicans in today's House vote to override President Nixon's veto of the $19.7 billion health-education bill sought last-minute assurances the administration would come up with an acceptable alternative.

An Associated Press poll prior to this afternoon's scheduled vote showed many of the 80 GOP representatives who voted for the bill when it passed the House Dec. 22 awaited such assurances before deciding which way to go.

Of 80 Republicans reached, 36 said they were awaiting the administration's alternative plan; 26 said they would vote to sustain the veto and 18 said they would vote to override.

Republican leaders had said they were confident they had the 145 votes to defeat the attempt to override if all House members voted.

Democrats said even if they lost the battle they still would make the bill a major campaign issue in the November elections. Leaders of both sides said the end result would be good for them at the polls.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., said Tuesday the White House had agreed to accept a $442 million funding level in a new bill for the crucial impact aid section allocating funds to school districts which have heavy enrollments because of federal installations.

Nixon, in vetoing the bill, told the nation Monday the $12 billion more than he requested in the measure was inflationary. He took special aim at $600 million for the impact aid when SAIGON (AP) — Charges that censored by authorities at the America Forces Vietnam Network are "completely unfounded and unsupported," investigators for the U.S. Command said today.

The command's inspector general also denied that a former AFVN newscaster who made the censorship charges during a broadcast is being persecuted for his remarks.

The broadcaster, Spec. 5 Robert E. Lawrence of Atlanta, Ga., was transferred from Saigon to Peiku and made a chaplain's assistant.

OSU Veep's Aide
Charged By Police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — William E. Conley, special assistant to Ohio State University Vice President John T. Mount, has been accused of receiving and concealing stolen property.

Conley surrendered to police Tuesday and was released on a cognizance bond pending court arraignment. Officers said a former student who was charged with ransacking an apartment told detectives he sold some of the loot to Conley.

Israeli Jets Hit Egyptian Camps South Of Cairo

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli planes attacked two Egyptian army camps in the Nile Delta south of Cairo today, the Israeli military command announced.

The raiding jets hit the El-Muadi army camp six miles south of Cairo and a base at Dahshur, eight miles south of Helwan, a spokesman said.

He reported all the planes returned safely.

It was Israel's sixth strike into the delta region in six weeks.

An Egyptian military spokesman said the Israeli jets raided Maadi and Dahshur, on the west bank of the Nile about 12 miles south of Cairo. He reported three people were killed and 12 wounded.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire was heard in the Egyptian capital for about 15 minutes, and the electric supply was cut for about 20 minutes in many parts of the city. Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said the raid was made by four Israeli jets.

The Israeli command also took a representative of the foreign press, Bill Seaman of the American Broadcasting Co., to the Israeli military headquarters in the Sinai desert, at Nahal Dikla, to check on Egypt's claim that its commandos had destroyed "most of the encampment and equipment" and killed a large number of Israeli soldiers in a raid early Tuesday.

Seamans said he found one shell hole inside the camp's barbed wire but "saw no indication of any other military action having taken place." He said life at the base appeared normal, no one seemed to have been injured and no special precautions were being taken.

The Israeli command had announced that "some improvised bazooka rockets" had been fired at Nahal Dikla and "caused no damage or casualties whatsoever."

In Paris, Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas said if Libya sends to the Israeli front any of the Mirage jets it is buying from France, the French government will embargo the undelivered balance of the 100-plane order. But he said his govern-

Guards Get New Look

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's August idea of European style formal dress garb for White House police has bloomed in late January—to a cold reception from some critics.

The new $95 outfits ordered for about 100 policemen are described by the Secret Service as "a white cream tunic, made out of elastique, with a double-breasted cut, three buttons, a standup collar, gold nylon trim, and a vinyl cap."

Nixon apparently was pleased by the uniforms since he had four of the police in their new outfits at the front door of the White House when British Prime Minister Harold Wilson arrived for a state dinner Tuesday night. It was believed the first time the guards had taken a formal part in a state dinner ceremony.

Some critical comments from bystanders who got a first public glimpse of the uniforms ranged from "Late Weimar Republic" to "They look like extras from a Lithuanian movie" and "Nazi uniforms."

For 36 years the guards wore drab ebony uniforms and white caps.

With their new outfits, they continue wearing the pants, gun and holster which are carryovers from usual police dress.

Nixon's suggestion for new uniforms came last summer after he noticed the palace guard and policemen during his European tour.

Presidential Welfare Plan Strikes Snag

Income Changes
Pose Problem
For Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has run up against a stubborn snag in its consideration of President Nixon's proposal to supplement the income of the "working poor," some members say.

The problem: Many of those who are employed, but earning less than their family requirements, have casual and temporary jobs. As a result, their earned income varies widely from month to month, or even day to day.

The Nixon plan contemplates supplements to insure a $2,400 minimum yearly income for a family of four, for example. But how to calculate the amount needed to supplement a constantly fluctuating income?

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said the problem was pointed up in testimony by the directors of an Office of Economic Opportunity experiment in New Jersey, a sort of small-scale pilot version of the administration proposal.

Monthly interviews to establish the current family income would be necessary, Ullman said the experiment directors advised the committee.

"This would be an administrative nightmare, when you consider they are talking of a new

State Retires Some Debts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Roger Cloud reported today that the state has retired more than $700 million out of an aggregate bonded debt of $1.67 billion authorized by the electorate during the last 15 years.

Cloud, in a summary prepared for the legislature, said total retirements of all obligations dating back to 1954 amount to $701.8 million. His figures show this leaves an outstanding debt of $968.1 million, including a $50 million issue of highway obligations approved by the State sinking Fund Commission last December.

Other figures in the revised debt statement show that as of the close of 1969, the state had paid $206.9 million in interest on seven issues of notes and bonds since the original issue of major thoroughfare bond in October, 1954—obligations which were first approved by the voters and then issued by the commission.

Nearly half of the overall interest costs, or $103.2 million, was paid on the one-half-billion dollars worth of major thoroughfare construction bonds, of which $97.8 million are still outstanding.

Troops Put Down New Irish Outbreak

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British troops with fixed bayonets headed off a Protestant march on a Roman Catholic section of Belfast early today as angry chanting crowds roamed the streets for the fourth night in a row.

The upsurge of tension brought fears of a revival of the religious warfare in which more than 20 persons were killed and hundreds injured last year.

Soil Conservationists Hold Annual Meet In Columbus

A record number of 240 conservationists from all over Ohio gathered recently at the Southern Hotel in Columbus for the 14th Annual January Meeting of the "All-Ohio Chapter" of the Soil Conservation Society of America.

"Challenges of the 70's" was the theme of this year's 2-day meeting and was attended by Donald Archer, District Conservationist, located at Circleville. Participants had the opportunity to learn about the latest thinking, research work being conducted and plans to meet the challenges presented in the conservation of our natural resources in the decade ahead.

Philip Lewis Jr., chairman of the Department of Landscape Architecture, School of Natural Resources, University of Wisconsin delivered the keynote address, "Design for Human Impact." Topics discussed by other speakers included: Do We See The Challenges, Water Resource Development, Changing Social Environments, The Declining Conservation Dollar, Competing Forces of Today, Conservation Education Challenges and Research in Forestry and Soils. The film, "Open Space, Going, Going" was shown.

Guest speaker at the evening Banquet and Awards Program was State Senator Ralph Regula, Canton, Ohio, who spoke on "Space Race Country Style." The chapter's first $100 scholarship was awarded to Thomas Mills, Mansfield, Ohio, a Junior at Ohio State University majoring in Forest Industries. This scholarship is based on a college student demonstrating the highest personal, academic and professional characteristics in keeping with the Society's objective of "Advancing the science and art of good land use."

The chapter's Outstanding Public Service award was given to State Senator Harry Armstrong, Logan, Ohio. Outstanding member award went to Clarence McKnight, Athens, Ohio, a past president of the chapter.

An individual, group or firm can become members of the All-Ohio chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America. An interest in the vital subject of conservation is all that is needed.

Information concerning this organization can be obtained by contacting the Pickaway Soil and Water Conservation District Office, 1440 N. Court St.

Colder Air Ends Thaw In Mid-U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow rode a surge of colder weather into the midcontinent today and dampened a January thaw that had pushed temperatures into the 60s and 70s in parts of the plains and Rockies.

High-wind warnings were in effect for mountain passes and along the eastern slopes of the Colorado Rockies. Travelers warnings also were out in the mountains.

Snow trailed northeastward out of the central Rockies into the Dakotas and Minnesota. Rain dampened scattered areas south of the cold front.

Freezing rain and sleet glazed parts of southern Wisconsin before daybreak.

Temperature drops generally were not severe behind the cold front. In many cases it was simply a return to normal late January chilliness following several days of abnormal mildness.

The mercury soared to 73 at Goodland, Kan., Tuesday to set a record for Jan. 27 there. Records for the date also were reported at Pueblo, Colo., 72; Amarillo, Tex., 75; and Midland, Tex., 80.

Skies cleared over much of the Pacific Northwest after several days of wind and rain.

Dense fog again blanketed stretches of the Gulf Coast at daybreak.

Light snow ranged from the eastern Great Lakes into the northern and central Appalachians.

Coldest weather remained centered over northern New England, where Houlton, Maine, chilled down to 8 below zero before dawn.

Temperatures were expected to rise into the low 40s today.

Wholesale Prices Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, led by large increases for processed foods, rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent this month for the largest monthly rise in a year, the government reported today.

The Labor Department report said prices of processed foods and feeds climbed 2 per cent for the month, farm products were up four-tenths of 1 per cent and a broad range of industrial raw materials increased three-tenths of 1 per cent.

The preliminary wholesale price report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics indicated the strong prospect of a continued rise in the nation's worst inflationary surge in 20 years.

The over-all rise in the wholesale price index was the largest since January 1969, when the index went up eight-tenths of 1 per cent.

The latest increase pushed the index up to 115.9. The figure means that it cost wholesalers $115.90 on the average for goods worth $100 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Registration Continues For YMCA Classes

The YMCA announced today that registration is continuing in all classes of its informal education school.

Although many of the Informal Education classes are full, the YMCA is accepting registrations in the following classes.

Monday, beginning guitar for adults and youth, interior decorating and identifying and restoring antiques.

Tuesdays: openings in women's self defense, beginning and advanced karate and print making.

For Wednesday the schedule includes class openings in beginning yoga, acrobatic and ballet for ages 5-7 and 8-11, intermediate baton, advanced baton, husbands and wives "Pounds Off," and women's evening fitness program.

Thursday's opening includes knitting and the new income tax class. The Friday beginning baton class still has openings for girls 6 through 9 years of age.

Class applications and checks are to be returned to the YMCA personally or by mail. Information on the informal education program can be obtained by calling the office at 474-8621.

(Continued from Page 1) he said the measure provided "the wrong amount for the wrong purpose and at the wrong time."

The President originally proposed $202 million for the impacted aid.

Republican congressmen went into the vote torn between loyalty to the GOP president and pressure from home for the health and education funds as provided in the $19.7 billion measure. School officials said the veto could cause havoc and health authorities warned research programs would be crippled.

This was the first time in a decade for Congress to attempt to override a presidential veto. In 1960 the legislators overwhelmingly approved a 7½ per cent federal pay raise bill after President Dwight D. Eisenhower had rejected it.

Hubert H. Humphrey, who was a Democratic senator at the time of that vote, said Tuesday night in Philadelphia that he hoped Congress would be able to upset the Nixon veto. The former vice president and Nixon's opponent in 1968, said he didn't think the bill had anything to do with inflation.

Ross Solons Offer Reward In Slaying

Ross County Commissioners have offered a $200 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the death of Mrs. Mary Baines. She was slain one week ago while working at her store, Cappy's Carry-out, in the "worst crime anyone can remember in Ross County."

Private citizens had indicated a willingness to contribute to a reward fund, according to Commissioner McDonald who proposed the reward. By the county making the first move, it was hoped a private organization would be encouraged to administer the fund which the county office cannot do.

Commissioners agreed to the fund commenting "the amount of reward would have to be pretty high" for someone to take the chance of revealing information.

Chillicothe police are continuing their search for the slayer.

Ohio Solons Told Marijuana Needs Control, Not Full Ban

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Like alcoholic beverages, the state should control marijuana, not eliminate it, says Benson A. Wolman, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union's Ohio chapter.

Wolman told an Ohio House legislative committee Tuesday that "the use of marijuana by adults involves protected constitutional rights, including the right of privacy."

Wolman testified before the Health and Welfare Committee, which is considering a bill that would lessen the penalty for use of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. George Mastics, R-52 Fairview, also would require a mandatory three-day jail term for first offenders. First offenders eventually could have the conviction stricken from their records.

Wolman said marijuana should be regulated by the state in the same manner it controls alcoholic beverages. The bill was sent to a subcommittee for further study.

Tuesday's round of legislative hearings ended when the House Finance - Appropriations committee voted out a bill which would allow Kent State University's branch at New Philadelphia to issue revenue bonds for capital improvements.

The sponsor, Rep. William Hinig, D-32 New Philadelphia, noted that the branch was the only state-operated educational institution in Ohio without bond-issuing power.

The House Ways and Means Committee heard proponents of a bill to repeal the state's permissive county auto sales tax. The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Robert Netzel, R-7 Laura, would repeal the sales tax, but permit a use tax.

The proponents argue that the half - per cent sales tax, now used in Lake, Miami and Cuyahoga counties, drives potential auto buyers to non-taxing counties. Under Netzel's bill, the tax would be charged in the county where it is to be used.

Dave Mainwaring of the New Car Dealers Association said his group supports the bill "as a matter of business dollars."

The only other committee action centered around another bill sponsored by Mastics. His bill, also before the Health and Welfare Committee, would restrict the use of DDT and other economic poisons.

CCA Official Named To Forestry Panel

James L. Eberhart, management forester of the local Container Corp., will be included among a panel of professional foresters at a conference Thursday held in conjunction with the 67th Annual meeting of the Ohio Forestry Assn.

The symposium will begin 11 a.m. Thursday in the Neil House, Columbus. Its purpose is to acquaint urban owners of forest land with the opportunities of growing and harvesting repeated tree crops.

Eberhart and the three other members of the panel will present the outlook for timber and potential returns, recommend practices to increase production, review taxation as it relates to timber growing and advise sources of technical assistance available to owners of managed woodlands.

Persons having an interest in the conference should notify the OFA office or Thomas M. Higgins, executive director of the organization.

Soil Conservationists Hold Annual Meet In Columbus

A record number of 240 conservationists from all over Ohio gathered recently at the Southern Hotel in Columbus for the 14th Annual January Meeting of the "All-Ohio Chapter" of the Soil Conservation Society of America.

"Challenges of the 70's" was the theme of this year's 2-day meeting and was attended by Donald Archer, District Conservationist, located at Circleville. Participants had the opportunity to learn about the latest thinking, research work being conducted and plans to meet the challenges presented in the conservation of our natural resources in the decade ahead.

Philip Lewis Jr., chairman of the Department of Landscape Architecture, School of Natural Resources, University of Wisconsin delivered the keynote address, "Design for Human Impact." Topics discussed by other speakers included: Do We See The Challenges, Water Resource Development, Changing Social Environments, The Declining Conservation Dollar, Competing Forces of Today, Conservation Education Challenges and Research in Forestry and Soils. The film, "Open Space, Going, Going" was shown.

Guest speaker at the evening Banquet and Awards Program was State Senator Ralph Regula, Canton, Ohio, who spoke on "Space Race Country Style." The chapter's first $100 scholarship was awarded to Thomas Mills, Mansfield, Ohio, a Junior at Ohio State University majoring in Forest Industries. This scholarship is based on a college student demonstrating the highest personal, academic and professional characteristics in keeping with the Society's objective of "Advancing the science and art of good land use."

The chapter's Outstanding Public Service award was given to State Senator Harry Armstrong, Logan, Ohio. Outstanding member award went to Clarence McKnight, Athens, Ohio, a past president of the chapter.

An individual, group or firm can become members of the All-Ohio chapter of the Soil Conservation Society of America. An interest in the vital subject of conservation is all that is needed.

The committee has turned for the present from the working poor proposal to a study of an employment referral system.

Established by present law, but proposed for expansion by the administration, the system provides for specialized analysis, training and job referral for able bodied members of welfare families.

Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said officials from states which have started such programs gave enthusiastic reports to the committee. The major immediate problem, he said, is the heavy cost of expanding the plan.

Colder Air Ends Thaw In Mid-U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow rode a surge of colder weather into the midcontinent today and dampened a January thaw that had pushed temperatures into the 60s and 70s in parts of the plains and Rockies.

High-wind warnings were in effect for mountain passes and along the eastern slopes of the Colorado Rockies. Travelers warnings also were out in the mountains.

Snow trailed northeastward out of the central Rockies into the Dakotas and Minnesota. Rain dampened scattered areas south of the cold front.

Freezing rain and sleet glazed parts of southern Wisconsin before daybreak.

Temperature drops generally were not severe behind the cold front. In many cases it was simply a return to normal late January chilliness following several days of abnormal mildness.

The mercury soared to 73 at Goodland, Kan., Tuesday to set a record for Jan. 27 there. Records for the date also were reported at Pueblo, Colo., 72; Amarillo, Tex., 75; and Midland, Tex., 80.

Skies cleared over much of the Pacific Northwest after several days of wind and rain.

Dense fog again blanketed stretches of the Gulf Coast at daybreak.

Light snow ranged from the eastern Great Lakes into the northern and central Appalachians.

Coldest weather remained centered over northern New England, where Houlton, Maine, chilled down to 8 below zero before dawn.

Temperatures were expected to rise into the low 40s today.

Wholesale Prices Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices, led by large increases for processed foods, rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent this month for the largest monthly rise in a year, the government reported today.

The Labor Department report said prices of processed foods and feeds climbed 2 per cent for the month, farm products were up four-tenths of 1 per cent and a broad range of industrial raw materials increased three-tenths of 1 per cent.

The preliminary wholesale price report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics indicated the strong prospect of a continued rise in the nation's worst inflationary surge in 20 years.

Wholesale food prices tend to move rapidly into higher retail grocery prices.

The over-all rise in the wholesale price index was the largest since January 1969, when the index went up eight-tenths of 1 per cent.

The latest increase pushed the index up to 115.9. The figure means that it cost wholesalers $115.90 on the average for goods worth $100 in the 1957-59 period on which the index is based.

Say German Cities Target Of A-Bombs

HAMBURG, Germany (ap) — A West German magazine reported today it had been passed top secret U.S. Air Force plans for dropping atomic bombs on West German cities in the event of a nuclear war. It said the purpose would be to deny facilities to Soviet-bloc forces.

Stern magazine said the plans, received from an unknown courier, already were in the hands of the Soviet bloc.

The material handed to Stern comprised purported photographed copies of pages from a handbook, "Nuclear Yield Requirement," that it said was compiled by the deputy chief of staff for intelligence of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe, which is headquartered in Wiesbaden.

The pages outline possible atomic targets in northern West Germany, including the cities of Kiel, Neumuenster, Flensburg and Luebeck, as well as strategic targets along the North Baltic Sea Canal, the magazine said in a report that will be published in its edition appearing on news stands Thursday.

Stern said high U.S. authorities had confirmed the "absolute authenticity" of the documents. An Air Force spokesman at Wiesbaden declined comment.

The documents, the magazine said, were among those passed to the Russians by U.S. Army Sgt. Robert Lee Johnson in 1965. Johnson later was sentenced to 25 years in prison after pleading guilty to charges of conspiring to obtain defense secrets, acting as a Russian agent without registering as such and illegally communicating top secret defense information to a Russian agent while serving in Paris.

Stock Market Up Slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, after a stream of losing sessions, bounced back in moderate trading this afternoon to edge into the winning column.

"The market has reached a point where bargains are appearing," commented Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co., "and people are taking advantage of them."

The Dow Jones industrial average, already at its lowest level in three years, edged to 765.11, up 1.12, at noon.

During midday trading, rubber issues, farm implements, aircrafts, metals, rails, and airlines were stronger, while motor, oils, tobaccos and drugs were weaker, and steels, electronics, utilities, chemicals, and building materials were mixed.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon spurred to 263.7, with industrials gaining 1.2, rails up .9, and utilities ahead .5.

Advances led declines in mid-day trading by only 40 issues.

Fourteen of the American Stock Exchange's 20 most-active issues were ahead in mid-day trading, with 4 on the decline and 2 unchanged. Washash Magnetics topped the active issue list at 28, up, on a volume of 75,100 shares.

Registration Continues For YMCA Classes

The YMCA announced today that registration is continuing in all classes of its informal education school.

Although many of the Informal Education classes are full, the YMCA is accepting registrations in the following classes.

Monday, beginning guitar for adults and youth, interior decorating and identifying and restoring antiques.

Tuesdays: openings in women's self defense, beginning and advanced karate and print making.

For Wednesday the schedule includes class openings in beginning yoga, aerobic and ballet for ages 5-7 and 8-11, intermediate baton, advanced baton, husbands and wives "Pounds Off," and women's evening fitness program.

Thursday's opening includes knitting and the new income tax class. The Friday beginning baton class still has openings for girls 6 through 9 years of age.

Class applications and checks are to be returned to the YMCA personally or by mail. Information on the informal education program can be obtained by calling the office at 474-8621.

Gas Supplier Eases Curbs On Usage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The East Ohio Gas Co., which curtailed gas service to industrial customers last week to save fuel for home consumption, is gradually relaxing restrictions and says it expects to restore normal service by midnight tonight.

Depleted reserves were built up during the recent warming trend and a long range forecast for February indicates temperatures will be normal or only slightly below normal, the company said.

East Ohio restricted gas usage to 900 industrial customers because continued cold weather caused a serious drain on the reserve supply of gas.

About 30,000 workers at the plants were laid off when the curtailment was announced, but many of them were called back after the plants went to fuels other than gas.

Ford Motor Co. recalled 9,300 workers at its Brook Park complex, beginning at midnight Tuesday. General Motors Corp. has called back about 10,500 of the 15,000 employees it laid off.

Ohio Solons Told Marijuana Needs Control, Not Full Ban

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Like alcoholic beverages, the state should control marijuana, not eliminate it, says Benson A. Wolman, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union's Ohio chapter.

Wolman told an Ohio House legislative committee Tuesday that "the use of marijuana by adults involves protected constitutional rights, including the right of privacy."

Wolman testified before the Health and Welfare Committee, which is considering a bill that would lessen the penalty for use of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. George Mastics, R-52 Fairview, also would require a mandatory three-day jail term for first offenders. First offenders eventually could have the conviction stricken from their records.

Wolman said marijuana should be regulated by the state in the same manner it controls alcoholic beverages. The bill was sent to a subcommittee for further study.

Tuesday's round of legislative hearings ended when the House Finance Appropriations committee voted out a bill which would allow Kent State University's branch at New Philadelphia to issue revenue bonds for capital improvements.

The sponsor, Rep. William Hinig, D-32 New Philadelphia, noted that the branch was the only state-operated educational institution in Ohio without bonding power.

The House Ways and Means Committee heard proponents of a bill to repeal the state's permissive county auto sales tax. The bill, sponsored by State Rep. Robert Netzel, R-7 Laura, would repeal the sales tax, but permit a use tax.

The proponents argue that the half - per cent sales tax, now used in Lake, Miami and Cuyahoga counties, drives potential auto buyers to non-taxing counties. Under Netzel's bill, the tax would be charged in the county where it is to be used.

Dave Mainwaring of the New Car Dealers Association said his group supports the bill "as a matter of business dollars."

The only other committee action centered around another bill sponsored by Mastics. His bill, also before the Health and Welfare Committee, would restrict the use of DDT and other economic poisons.

CCA Official Named To Forestry Panel

James L. Eberhart, management forester of the local Container Corp., will be included among a panel of professional foresters at a conference Thursday held in conjunction with the 67th Annual meeting of the Ohio Forestry Assn.

The symposium will begin 11 a.m. Thursday in the Neil House, Columbus. Its purpose is to acquaint urban owners of forest land with the opportunities of growing and harvesting repeated tree crops.

Eberhart and the three other members of the panel will present the outlook for timber and potential returns, recommend practices to increase production, review taxation as it relates to timber growing and advise sources of technical assistance available to owners of managed woodlands.

Persons having an interest in the conference should notify the OFA office or Thomas M. Higgins, executive director of the organization.

Farm Decline Continues

It is something of a shock to learn from the Agriculture Department at Washington that the number of farms in the United States has dropped to the lowest point in about 100 years. Not since the 1870s have there been fewer farms than there are today.

The decade of the 1960s saw a drop of 28 per cent in the number of farms, to a total of about 2,895,000 today. During the same period farm acreage decreased about 5 per cent to a 1970 estimate of 1.123 billion acres.

There is still no indication that the trend to larger and fewer farms has ended. Nor will it end so long as pressures for other uses of land remain heavy.

Most of the land given up by agriculture goes into housing settlements and highways.

If inflation has been a burden to the average consumer, it is more troublesome to the farmer who finds costs for nearly everything he buys rising faster than prices he is paid for his products. The decade of the 1970s shows little promise of any improvement to him.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be, as President Nixon suggested in his State of the Union message, that present inflation stems from past imbalances in federal budgets, but wasn't that a long, long time ago?

Regardless of who is to blame for the present economic imbalance, the President has the unenviable distinction of presiding over a nation whose rate of inflation 12 months after he took office nearly equaled that of Argentina.

This nation long has scorned the economics of Latin America, mainly because its nations, and underdeveloped lands elsewhere, sometimes succumbed to the temptation of seeking growth through inflation.

Their experiences have been a lesson to many of these nations. Business investment stagnated, foreign debts became oppressive, speculation ran rampant. Even governments were overthrown before inflation was destroyed.

In the decade of the 1960s Argentina's inflation averaged 23 per cent a year, but by 1969 it had reduced the rate to 7.2 per cent. By coincidence, that is the same rate at which consumer inflation reduced American buying power last month.

The comparison led one large international bank to comment in a publication for its corporate customers and correspondents banks:

"While opinions in Latin America and Europe are turning away from inflation as a way of economic life, the attitudes of many people in the United States—outside of key administration officials—are going the opposite way."

If this is so, the challenge to the nation is clear, and judging by its determination to uproot the inflationary psychology through controls on spending, the government feels it is doing its share.

A restless feeling seems to be growing among critics, however, a hope that something other than a frontal assault might be considered by the administration in view of the fact that after 12 months of effort inflation is not as ever.

Are there methods of dealing with inflation, they ask, other than to balance the budget and make money difficult to obtain? Is there an alternative to pushing the country headlong over the precipice of recession?

It is possible that government policy actually is fueling inflation? Is the soaring cost of shelter, for example, directly related to measures that have slowed the pace of housing construction?

Isn't there something to be learned by studying the market performance of key industries over the past decade or so and attempting to deal with these separately?

The soaring cost of medical care—up about 25 per cent in five years—is one of the more obvious instances of an area of the economy that is unlikely to respond to conventional anti-inflation measures.

The answer is undoubtedly complex, but the possibility that inflation will continue in medical services seems to be suggested by the inadequate number of doctors being graduated from the medical schools.

Isn't there something to be learned also by the fact that chemical prices rose sharply in the five years following World War II but have remained stable since then, even during inflation?

Why should there be upward pressure on prices in some metals industries, even in declining markets which, it is reasonable to assume, should encourage lower prices in an attempt to win new customers and save old business?

What are the causes of price increases during December in gasoline, cigarettes, newspapers, magazine and alcoholic drinks consumed away from home? Why should egg prices have taken off so suddenly?

If farm products are among those rising most swiftly in recent years, why is it that the farmer claims he isn't getting a proportionate share?

And if the lumber industry has modernized, why should the prices of lumber and wood products have risen more than 25 per cent in five years?

Laff-A-Day

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

JOHN HART MACY, justly renowned as Vermont's most atrocious punster, submits this new specimen of his fiendish imagination:

"Joy and Elaine's top-floor apartment had a sundeck that was made to order for acquiring a head-to-toe tan — except when Mr. Boyle was home. Mr. Boyle, domiciled one floor higher in an adjoining building, commanded a superb view of the Joy-Elaine apartment."

"One afternoon in August, Joy suggested to Elaine, 'Let's get an hour's worth of tan.' 'Not now,' disputed Elaine, 'Old Man Boyle is home.' 'But he's drunk as a lord,' pointed out Joy. 'What's that got to do with it?' asked Elaine. Concluded Joy triumphantly, 'A potted Boyle never watches.'"

Outraged because her husband had watched fourteen football games, plus seven basketball encounters on TV over the Christmas holidays, a wife in Tennessee inserted this classified ad in the local newspaper: "For sale cheap: husband, plus TV set; no reasonable offer refused." In one day, she received nine phone calls—but they all were from other wives offering an even trade, sight unseen.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Are there any known treatments to control excess and often embarrassing perspiration? Sometimes even in a cold room I suddenly begin to perspire and become absolutely miserable. It has changed my entire social life.

Mrs. E. D. C., Michigan
Dear Mrs. C.: I cannot tell from your letter what your approximate age is and therefore will include some information that may not apply to you. The causes for marked perspiration, unrelated to physical activity, must be tracked down before any form of treatment is suggested.

An overactive thyroid, sudden changes in heat and humidity, and some chronic illnesses may cause severe perspiration as an unexpected side effect.

Emotional tensions are probably the most frequent cause. Women in the premenopausal and menopausal phase often have sudden, unexplained bouts of flushes and perspiration.

Doctors sometimes recommend a form of atropine, or belladonna, for this condition if there is no other basic physical cause. Under their direction these drugs are safe for the duration they suggest.

Some people as distressed as you are sometimes seek and find mail order drugs which may be hazardous. I have known patients who have even exposed themselves to the danger of X-ray treatments for excess perspiration. This is a particularly dangerous thing to do.

A great deal of interesting work is being done by the behavioral psychologist on the control of severe perspiration through psychotherapy and hypnosis. If this is ever undertaken it should be done only by those who are specially trained in this technique.

I have a growth on my wrist which has been called a ganglion. It really doesn't bother me and has only grown slightly larger in the past ten years. Do they ever become cancerous?

Mr. H. L., Indiana
Dear Mr. L.: These ganglions are cysts of the joints and tendons of the wrists and are usually filled with a thick gelatinous substance. They never become malignant or cancerous and only rarely do they become infected. If there is the slightest suspicion about it, removal under local anesthesia is simple. The tissue is then examined and its negative nature frees the patient of concern.

An interesting method of "breaking" these cysts was to whack it hard with a Bible. This has no religious implication. The Bible was chosen because it is the handiest and heaviest book in the house. This Bible therapy is rarely permanently effective.

Does trachoma occur in any part of the United States? I am writing about this in a term paper.

Mr. G. Y., Maine
Dear Mr. Y.: Trachoma is caused by a virus that seems to flourish in areas of poor hygiene and poverty. Only occasionally is trachoma seen in the United States because of our remarkable public health services. It is hoped that this disease will soon be eradicated everywhere because of a new vaccine and because of the use of antibiotics.

When a Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, grocer forgot to lock his store's door as he left for home, alert residents of the area helped themselves to some $10,000 worth of goodies for free. Now that's what we call a "bad neighbor" policy!

The larcenous "customers" also helped themselves to the grocery carts. A case of wheeling and dealing — strictly crooked, in each category.

Advice Won't Be Taken

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Pierre Rinfret, the bad boy of economics who says that President Nixon's advisers are talking through their hats when they say that inflation will be licked this coming year, recently titillated a group of Wall Streeters at an Esquire Magazine round-table discussion by giving his own "Rinfret Dozen" of suggestions for getting our price rises under control. Listening to him at the Yale Club in New York, one could see why Rinfret thinks the economy is going to continue to charge ahead, with the consumer running twice as fast as before in order to stay in the same place. The fact is that nobody is going to take Pierre Rinfret's very good advice.

The reason is that at least three of the measures proposed in the "Rinfret Dozen" must prove so impossible of realization within a short timespan that the rest would have little effect even if they were accepted. Rinfret is up against a Congress that simply won't react in time.

The key items in the "Rinfret Dozen" are those referring to "cost-push" and other sticky phenomena that compel people to raise prices. Rinfret told his audience that the Justice Department must "file anti-trust suits against the unions to break up their membership."

Trade unions, because of their monopoly position, are able to increase wages and prices.

Then there are the farmers, who, according to Rinfret, must give up those government subsidies that keep the price of food high. And there are the service industries, including the whole hospital-doctor complex, that resist automation.

For months now I have watched the efforts of the National Right to Work Committee, run by the indefatigable Reed Larson, to get Congress to consider legislation that would deprive the big unions of their power to use compulsorily collected dues to support their own candidates for office.

Senator Paul Fannin (R., Ariz.) introduced a bill that would have taxed unions which use money coerced out of union shop membership for what is euphemistically called "political education." Fannin could not get his bill passed in a Senate where the beneficiaries of union funds are the balance-of-power element. So, since the unions maintain a stranglehold on the Senate by virtue of the financial club they wield, it is hardly likely that anybody in Washington is going to bust the "monopoly position" of labor that Pierre Rinfret complains about.

It follows from this that the farmers, faced with high industrial prices, are going to insist on "getting theirs." With both the farmers and the union bosses in "dug-in positions," how are "verbal wage and price control" — another Rinfret demand — going to work? Rinfret says that if Nixon had denounced the steel industry it would not have raised prices. But steel just passes along its costs and so do other industries that try to recoup wage raises by getting the consumer to pay more.

Rinfret touches a particularly sore spot when he observes that the rise in "the cost of service" over the last twenty years has been at "a 3.5 per cent annual rate" while the price on "durable and non-durable goods rose 1.6 per cent." This creates a "scissors effect" that defies easy exorcism. When Henry Ford put the first Model T on his automated belt-line, he discovered that he could sell the last car out of his factory for much less than he would have had to charge for it if he had relied on ancient "batch production" methods. But the services rendered by surgeons and housemaids don't come off the belt-line. Rinfret wants to "integrate" the doctors "into medical centers where modern equipment is available" and so "get rid of the cost of, say, 5,000 receptionists." But doctors are individualists. How many years would it take to herd them into downtown group centers? As for other "services," they are going to remain in the high-price bracket as long as relief payments are kept at a level which permits people to stay out of the labor market rather than take "demeaning" employment.

Some items in the "Rinfret Dozen" could be put into effect rather quickly. The wholesale issue of unsolicited bank credit cards could be frozen, and selective investment tax credits could be granted to industries that need to expand if they are ever to lower their prices. There could be accelerated tax write-offs on home mortgages to encourage housing — and, as a by-product, the lowering of rents. And there could be a "freeze on government spending" if the Administration would really bite the bullet and do more than talk about it. But nothing important is going to happen until the costs of war have dwindled.

Pierre Rinfret knows this, which is why he remains a skeptic in spite of his own proffered "Rinfret Dozen."

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The dandelion should be America's national flower. It has many of the virtues we like to think of as typically American. It is bold and pioneering, gregarious and democratic, growing with equal grace on the lawns of the poor and the rich. Only pretentious snobs disdain its yellow glory just because it is free to all.

I wouldn't issue insurance on the life of any man who habitually pours himself a second or third drink of brandy after dinner.

Purple is the traditional color of royalty, but is the least flattering color to most of the women who insist on wearing it. Their husbands should be entitled to a divorce.

Anybody who still thinks that everything that goes up must come down hasn't paid his taxes lately.

If you get tired of sitting on your hands at a long opera sung in a foreign language, the best way to keep from getting bored is to look around and count the number of old ladies who still carry lorgnettes.

The best argument for the return of the vest is that it provides a needed variety in the average man's daily routine. It gives him something to spill gravy on besides his necktie.

Nothing restores a fellow's faith in a better world than to check the return cup in a phone booth, before making his own call, and find an overlooked dime in it. It warms his heart all day.

An old-timer is a guy who can remember when most policemen who had calluses had them on their feet.

A hypochondriac is a miser who will lend you his money but not his medicine.

Mugging has become so widespread that a man who brags at a cocktail party that he has never been assaulted or robbed on the streets is regarded by the other guests as either a liar or an exhibitionist.

Middle age is that time of life when a fellow who finally gets his just desserts can't enjoy them because they are not on his diet.

One of the differences between the sexes, zoologists say, is that women linger long

Every fellow feels secretly guilty because he didn't become the kind of man his mother wanted him to be. But if he had, would he really feel any more at ease with himself?

Farm Decline Continues

It is something of a shock to learn from the Agriculture Department at Washington that the number of farms in the United States has dropped to the lowest point in about 100 years. Not since the 1870s have there been fewer farms than there are today.

The decade of the 1960s saw a drop of 28 per cent in the number of farms, to a total of about 2,895,000 today. During the same period farm acreage decreased about 5 per cent to a 1970 estimate of 1.123 billion acres.

There is still no indication that the trend to larger and fewer farms has ended. Nor will it end so long as pressures for other uses of land remain heavy.

Most of the land given up by agriculture goes into housing settlements and highways.

If inflation has been a burden to the average consumer, it is more troublesome to the farmer who finds costs for nearly everything he buys rising faster than prices he is paid for his products. The decade of the 1970s shows little promise of any improvement to him.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be, as President Nixon suggested in his State of the Union message, that present inflation stems from past imbalances in federal budgets, but wasn't that a long, long time ago?

Regardless of who is to blame for the present economic imbalance, the President has the unenviable distinction of presiding over a nation whose rate of inflation 12 months after he took office nearly equaled that of Argentina.

This nation long has scorned the economics of Latin America, mainly because its nations, and underdeveloped lands elsewhere, sometimes succumbed to the temptation of seeking growth through inflation.

Their experiences have been a lesson to many of these nations. Business investment stagnated, foreign debts became oppressive, speculation ran rampant. Even governments were overthrown before inflation was dethroned.

In the decade of the 1960s Argentina's inflation averaged 23 per cent a year, but by 1969 it had reduced the rate to 7.2 per cent. By coincidence, that is the same rate at which consumer inflation reduced American buying power last month.

The comparison led one large international bank to comment in a publication for its corporate customers and correspondents banks:

"While opinions in Latin America and Europe are turning away from inflation as a way of economic life, the attitudes of many people in the United States—outside of key administration officials—are going the opposite way."

If this is so, the challenge to the nation is clear, and judging by its determination to uproot the inflationary psychology through controls on spending, the government feels it is doing its share.

A restless feeling seems to be growing among critics, however, a hope that something other than a frontal assault might be considered by the administration in view of the fact that after 12 months of effort inflation is not as ever.

Are there methods of dealing with inflation, they ask, other than to balance the budget and make money difficult to obtain? Is there an alternative to pushing the country heading over the precipice of recession?

It is possible that government policy actually is fueling inflation? Is the soaring cost of shelter, for example, directly related to measures that have slowed the pace of housing construction?

Isn't there something to be learned by studying the market performance of key industries over the past decade or so and attempting to deal with these separately?

The soaring cost of medical care—up about 25 per cent in five years—is one of the more obvious instances of an area of the economy that is unlikely to respond to conventional anti-inflation measures.

The answer is undoubtedly complex, but the possibility that inflation will continue in medical services seems to be suggested by the inadequate number of doctors being graduated from the medical schools.

Isn't there something to be learned also by the fact that chemical prices rose sharply in the five years following World War II but have remained stable since then, even during inflation?

Why should there be upward pressure on prices in some metals industries, even in declining markets which, it is reasonable to assume, should encourage lower prices in an attempt to win new customers and save old business?

What are the causes of price increases during December in gasoline, cigarettes, newspapers, magazine and alcoholic drinks consumed away from home? Why should egg prices have taken off so suddenly?

If farm products are among those rising most swiftly in recent years, why is it that the farmer claims he isn't getting a proportionate share?

And if the lumber industry has modernized, why should the prices of lumber and wood products have risen more than 25 per cent in five years?

JOHN HART MACY, justly renowned as Vermont's most atrocious punster, submits this new specimen of his fiendish imagination:

"Joy and Elaine's top-floor apartment had a sundeck that was made to order for acquiring a head-to-toe tan—except when Mr. Boyle was home. Mr. Boyle, domiciled one floor higher in an adjoining building, commanded a superb view of the Joy-Elaine apartment.

"One afternoon in August, Joy suggested to Elaine, 'Let's get an hour's worth of tan.' 'Not now,' disputed Elaine, 'Old Man Boyle is home.' 'But he's drunk as a lord,' pointed out Joy. 'What's that got to do with it?' asked Elaine. Concluded Joy triumphantly, 'A potted Boyle never watches.'"

Outraged because her husband had watched fourteen football games, plus seven basketball encounters on TV over the Christmas holidays, a wife in Tennessee inserted this classified ad in the local newspaper: "For sale cheap: husband, plus TV set; no reasonable offer refused." In one day, she received nine phone calls—but they all were from other wives offering an even trade, sight unseen.

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Are there any known treatments to control excess and often embarrassing perspiration? Sometimes even in a cold room I suddenly begin to perspire and become absolutely miserable. It has changed my entire social life.

Mrs. E. D. C., Michigan
Dear Mrs. C.: I cannot tell from your letter what your approximate age is and therefore will include some information that may not apply to you. The causes for marked perspiration, unrelated to physical activity, must be tracked down before any form of treatment is suggested.

An overactive thyroid, sudden changes in heat and humidity, and some chronic illnesses may cause severe perspiration as an unexpected side effect.

Emotional tensions are probably the most frequent cause. Women in the premenopausal and menopausal phase often have sudden, unexplained bouts of flushes and perspiration.

Doctors sometimes recommend a form of atropine, or belladonna, for this condition if there is no other basic physical cause. Under their direction these drugs are safe for the duration they suggest.

Some people as distressed as you are sometimes seek and find mail order drugs which may be hazardous. I have known patients who have even exposed themselves to the danger of X-ray treatments for excess perspiration. This is a particularly dangerous thing to do.

A great deal of interesting work is being done by the behavioral psychologist on the control of severe perspiration through psychotherapy and hypnosis. If this is ever undertaken it should be done only by those who are specially trained in this technique.

I have a growth on my wrist which has been called a ganglion. It really doesn't bother me and has only grown slightly larger in the past ten years. Do they ever become cancerous?

Mr. H. L., Indiana
Dear Mr. L.: These ganglions are cysts of the joints and tendons of the wrists and are usually filled with a thick gelatinous substance. They never become malignant or cancerous and only rarely do they become infected. If there is the slightest suspicion about it, removal under local anesthesia is simple. The tissue is then examined and its negative nature frees the patient of concern. An interesting method of "breaking" these cysts was to whack it hard with a Bible. This has no religious implication. The Bible was chosen because it is the handiest and heaviest book in the house. This Bible therapy is rarely permanently effective.

Does trachoma occur in any part of the United States? I am writing about this in a term paper.

Mr. G. Y., Maine
Dear Mr. Y.: Trachoma is caused by a virus that seems to flourish in areas of poor hygiene and poverty. Only occasionally is trachoma seen in the United States because of our remarkable public health services. It is hoped that this disease will soon be eradicated everywhere because of a new vaccine and because of the use of antibiotics.

Advice Won't Be Taken

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Pierre Rinfret, the bad boy of economics who says that President Nixon's advisers are talking through their hats when they say that inflation will be licked this coming year, recently titillated a group of Wall Streeters at an Esquire Magazine round-table discussion by giving his own "Rinfret Dozen" of suggestions for getting our price rises under control. Listening to him at the Yale Club in New York, one could see why Rinfret thinks the economy is going to continue to charge ahead, with the consumer running twice as fast as before in order to stay in the same place. The fact is that nobody is going to take Pierre Rinfret's very good advice.

The reason is that at least three of the measures proposed in the "Rinfret Dozen" must prove so impossible of realization within a short timespan that the rest would have little effect even if they were accepted. Rinfret is up against a Congress that simply won't react in time.

The key items in the "Rinfret Dozen" are those referring to "cost-push" and other sticky phenomena that compel people to raise prices. Rinfret told his audience that the Justice Department must "file anti-trust suits against the unions to break up their membership."

Trade unions, because of their monopoly position, are able to increase wages and prices. Then there are the farmers, who, according to Rinfret, must give up those government subsidies that keep the price of food high. And there are the service industries, including the whole hospital-doctor complex, that resist automation.

For months now I have watched the efforts of the National Right to Work Committee, run by the indefatigable Reed Larson, to get Congress to consider legislation that would deprive the big unions of their power to use compulsory collected dues to support their own candidates for office.

Senator Paul Fannin (R., Ariz.) introduced a bill that would have taxed unions which use money coerced out of union shop membership for what is euphemistically called "political education." Fannin could not get his bill passed in a Senate where the beneficiaries of union funds are the balance-of-power element. So, since the unions maintain a stranglehold on the Senate by virtue of the financial club they wield, it is hardly likely that anybody in Washington is going to bust the "monopoly position" of labor that Pierre Rinfret complains about.

It follows from this that the farmers, faced with high industrial prices, are going to insist on "getting theirs." With both the farmers and the union bosses in "dug-in positions," how are "verbal wage and price control"—another Rinfret demand—going to work? Rinfret says that if Nixon had denounced the steel industry it would not have raised prices. But steel just passes along its costs and so do other industries that try to recoup wage raises by getting the consumer to pay more.

Rinfret touches a particularly sore spot when he observes that the rise in "the cost of service" over the last twenty years has been at "a 3.5 per cent annual rate" while the price on "durable and non-durable goods" rose 1.6 per cent. This creates a "scissors effect" that defies easy exorcism. When Henry Ford put the first Model T on his automated belt-line, he discovered that he could sell the last car out of his factory for much less than he would have had to charge for it if he had relied on ancient "batch production" methods. But the services rendered by surgeons and housemaids don't come off the belt-line. Rinfret wants to "integrate" the doctors "into medical centers where modern equipment is available" and so "get rid of the cost of, say, 5,000 receptionists." But doctors are individualists. How many years would it take to herd them into downtown group centers? As for other "services," they are going to remain in the high-price bracket as long as relief payments are kept at a level which permits people to stay out of the labor market rather than take "demeaning" employment.

Some items in the "Rinfret Dozen" could be put into effect rather quickly. The wholesale issue of unsolicited bank credit cards could be frozen, and selective investment tax credits could be granted to industries that need to expand if they are ever to lower their prices. There could be accelerated tax write-offs on home mortgages to encourage housing—and, as a by-product, the lowering of rents. And there could be a "freeze on government spending" if the Administration would really bite the bullet and do more than talk about it. But nothing important is going to happen until the costs of war have dwindled.

Pierre Rinfret knows this, which is why he remains a skeptic in spite of his own proffered "Rinfret Dozen."

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau Summary for Ohio:

Early Wednesday radar stations were locating some areas of precipitation over Ohio and to the west but it was not reaching the ground. The best chance for showers will be in the northern part of the state, but even there only a 30 to 40 per cent probability of measurable rainfall was forecast. There is a much higher probability of precipitation as rain or showers for Wednesday night and Thursday.

If rainfall becomes moderate and prolonged, some streams will overflow their banks.

Above normal temperatures were expected over all of Ohio Wednesday and Thursday in advance of the low pressure system. Wednesday highs were forecast to range from the mid to upper 40s in the extreme north to the upper 50s in the extreme south. About the same temperatures were forecast again for Thursday, but some colder air is expected by evening. A cold front is expected to move into Western Ohio Thursday and reach the eastern part of the state by Thursday evening.

FORECASTS

OHIO—Mostly cloudy, warmer and windy tonight. A chance of rain or showers likely throughout the state. Lows mostly in the 40s. Thursday cloudy and mild with rain likely.

NORTHWEST INLAND, WEST LAKE SHORE, EAST LAKE SHORE & NORTHEAST INLAND OHIO — Mostly cloudy and warmer through Thursday. Rain or showers likely tonight and Thursday. Windy tonight. Lows tonight in the upper 30s and low 40s. Highs Thursday in the 40s.

WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL OHIO — Mostly cloudy and warmer through Thursday. Rain likely tonight and Thursday. Windy tonight. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs Thursday in the 50s.

SOUTHWEST & SOUTHEAST OHIO — Mostly cloudy and warmer through Thursday. Rain likely tonight and Thursday. Windy tonight. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs Thursday in the 50s.

OHIO FIVE-DAY FORECAST

Temperatures will continue to average well above normal Thursday through Monday. Highs will range from the lower 40s north to the upper 40s and lower 50s south. Overnight lows will range from the middle to upper 20s north to the upper 20s and lower 30s south. Warm Thursday, a little cooler Friday followed by a warming

McGovern Denies Money Bill Veto Was Necessary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., disputed Tuesday night President Nixon's contention that the $19.8 billion health and education bill was inflationary and predicted the Senate would override Nixon's veto.

McGovern, here to address the Ohio Pastors Convocation, said that if the President feels budget cuts are needed they should be made in military spending, "where the excess fat is."

He said he was confident there were enough votes in the Senate to override Nixon's veto of the measure. But he refused to predict what would happen in the House.

About 3,000 persons are attending the three-day convocation, which winds up tonight. A speaker earlier Tuesday told the delegates that Red China is a religious as well as political problem with this country, and preparations should be made for coexistence with the giant nation.

Dr. Alan Geyer, editor of Christian Century, said China is an ideological and even a fundamental religious problem.

Because of this he said, "China could well be the starting point for the reconstruction trend through Monday. Precipitation will average about .75 inch melted as rain Thursday and Friday and scattered showers late Sunday and Monday.

of our religious thought as well as American foreign policy."

Sen. McGovern told the ministers that he believed the nation should place greater priority on internal problems and less on military spending. He said the 1970s priorities he would

Japanese Wins Acquittal In Old Arson Retrial

OSAKE, Japan (AP) — A 70-year-old Japanese, accused of arson in Japanese-ruled Korea in 1941, was acquitted today after a retrial. Kenji Kanamori of Osaka was almost in tears as he heard Judge Isao Tanaka's verdict.

The Osaka Higher Court judge said that after a review he could find no "positive evidence" that Kanamori set fire to a steel mill in Pusan, Korea, on Oct. 2, 1941.

Kanamori was arrested the day after the fire and sentenced to 15 years in prison. After serving six years in Korea and in Japan, he was paroled in November 1947. But since then he has campaigned to prove his innocence, contending that the Japanese military police forced him to say he set the fire.

Legal authorities said they believed Kanamori will be entitled to at least 3 million yen—$8,333—as compensation for the time he served.

like to see are the combatting of air and water pollution, the ending of hunger, a complete halt to the Vietnam war and better education for youth.

Saying that "we are the most lawless, violent and crime-ridden nation on earth," the senator said that the principal threat to the nation "is no longer from without. As Pogo said, 'we have met the enemy, and they are us.'"

On Vietnam, he added: "I find it difficult to believe we could sacrifice the blood and treasures of America to save a military regime in Vietnam that doesn't have the respect of its own people."

He also called for greater toleration for those who dissent, and criticized the silent majority, saying: "It's very dangerous for any nation to suppress dissent and praise those who remain silent... to remain silent in face of need is not patriotism but moral cowardice."

Congressman Lets Youths Write Draft Law Changes

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A West Virginia congressman who is too old to worry about the draft is letting young men in his state write their own amendments to the Selective Service law.

Rep. John Slack says he will introduce any bill the young people come up with and see they have a chance to testify at draft hearings before the House Armed Services Committee this spring.

The 54-year-old Democrat and World War II veteran says his plan is designed for youths who want to become involved but don't know how.

To carry out his idea, Slack has asked presidents of four colleges in his district to "place this matter before an appropriate campus group and request that a bill be written to meet their convictions and requirements."

He said any suitable campus group desiring to take the initiative could do the job so long as it is generally representative of college-age interests.

"I would hope, however, that they would sound out the views of draft-age persons in the community who do not attend college," Slack said.

Once a bill is drafted, it will be introduced under Slack's name, a supporting statement inserted in the Congressional Record and a request for a hearing placed before the Armed Services Committee. Slack said he would arrange for appearance of the youthful witnesses.

The idea had its genesis in the tumultuous 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago, where young people were frustrated at their inability to work a change in the establishment, he said.

"Young people would say 'we want to get involved,' but they could only talk in generalities," Slack said. "What we've done is pinpointed something for them—something they can get their teeth into."

How Weather Looks Today

OHIO WEATHER SUMMARY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Official Weather Bureau Summary for Ohio:

Early Wednesday radar stations were locating some areas of precipitation over Ohio and to the west but it was not reaching the ground. The best chance for showers will be in the northern part of the state, but even there only a 30 to 40 per cent probability of measurable rainfall was forecast. There is a much higher probability of precipitation as rain or showers for Wednesday night and Thursday.

If rainfall becomes moderate and prolonged, some streams will overflow their banks.

Above normal temperatures were expected over all of Ohio Wednesday and Thursday in advance of the low pressure system. Wednesday highs were forecast to range from the mid to upper 40s in the extreme north to the upper 50s in the extreme south. About the same temperatures were forecast again for Thursday, but some colder air is expected by evening. A cold front is expected to move into Western Ohio Thursday and reach the eastern part of the state by Thursday evening.

FORECASTS

OHIO—Mostly cloudy, warmer and windy tonight. A chance of rain or showers likely throughout the state. Lows mostly in the 40s. Thursday cloudy and mild with rain likely.

NORTHWEST INLAND, WEST LAKE SHORE, EAST LAKE SHORE & NORTHEAST INLAND OHIO—Mostly cloudy and warmer through Thursday. Rain or showers likely tonight and Thursday. Windy tonight. Lows tonight in the upper 30s and low 40s. Highs Thursday in the 40s.

WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL OHIO—Mostly cloudy and warmer through Thursday. Rain or showers likely tonight and Thursday. Windy tonight. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs Thursday in the upper 40s to mid 50s.

SOUTHWEST & SOUTHEAST OHIO—Mostly cloudy and warmer through Thursday. Rain likely tonight and Thursday. Windy tonight. Lows tonight in the 40s. Highs Thursday in the 50s.

OHIO FIVE-DAY FORECAST

Temperatures will continue to average well above normal Thursday through Monday. Highs will range from the lower 40s north to the upper 40s and lower 50s south. Overnight lows will range from the middle to upper 20s north to the upper 20s and lower 30s south. Warm Thursday, a little cooler Friday followed by a warming

Solid Enjoyment's Built On Rock Lobster Tails

By ALICE DENHOFF

A delicious dinner can be built around South African rock lobster tails. They combine beautifully with many foods, and, of course, are good "as is" with plenty of drawn butter.

How about stepping out a little in the kitchen world and doing this delectable dish: ROCK LOBSTER STUFFED SQUASH

3 large zucchini, acorn or butternut squash
1/2 cup melted butter
Salt and pepper
3 packages (9 ounces each) frozen South African rock lobster tails

1 medium onion, chopped and sauteed in 2 tablespoons butter
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 1/2 cups diced cooked carrots
1/4 cup teaspoon oregano
2 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese (8 ounces)

Cut zucchini in lengthwise halves, removing any seeds. Brush cut surface heavily with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place halves in a shallow casserole in a single layer. Bake, covered, at 350 degrees until zucchini is easily pierced with fork (about 30 minutes for zucchini, 1 hour for other varieties). Scoop out zucchini, but leave other squash whole.

Drop frozen rock lobster tails into boiling salted water. When water reboils, cook for 2-3 minutes. Drain at once and drench with cold water. With scissors remove underside membrane; pull out meat in one piece.

Dice meat and mix with sauteed onion, celery, carrots, oregano. Stuff squash with mixture; sprinkle with cheese. Replace in oven; bake another 15 to 20 minutes or until cheese is melted and squash is hot. This serves 6 nicely.

ROCK LOBSTER CHOW MEIN

1 package (9 ounce) South African rock lobster tails
1/4 cup each, cooking oil or melted shortening
1/4 cup celery leaves, minced
1/2 cup minced onion
1 (no. 2) can beansprouts
1 (3 ounces) can sliced broiled-in-butter mushrooms
1 cup water
1/4 cup flour

1 cup minced celery
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1 to 3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 (No. 2 1/2) can Chinese noodles
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Cook frozen rock lobster tails as detailed above, cubing the meat. Set cubed meat aside. Heat oil or shortening. Add celery leaves and onion; cook until yellow. Drain bean sprouts and mushrooms. Add drained liquid, 1 cup water, and celery to skillet mixture. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes.

Mix flour to a smooth paste with 1/2 cup water; stir into hot mixture. Add sugar, salt and soy sauce to taste. Add rock lobster meat. Cover and simmer over low heat until well heated, about 5 minutes.

Serve rock lobster mixture over noodles and garnish with egg slices.

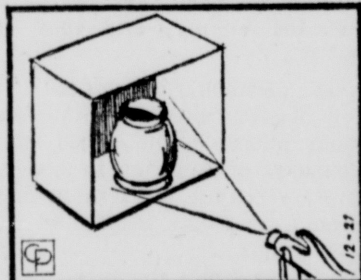

ROCK LOBSTER IN POTATO RING

3 packages (9 ounces each) S. A. rock lobster tails
4 medium potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup cream
2 teaspoons scraped onion
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt

Dash white pepper
Boil rock lobster tails and remove meat as detailed in prior recipes. Cut meat into bite-sized chunks. Boil potatoes in salted water until done. Make cream sauce of next 4 ingredients. Add seasonings and rock lobster chunks. While this is heating over a low flame, mash potatoes. Make a ring of mashed potatoes on heat-proof platter, pressing into shape with fork tines. Brush potatoes with butter or egg white and put under broiler to brown lightly; remove from heat.

To serve, fill center of ring with rock lobster mixture. Garnish with one empty rock lobster tail. Serves 8.

With this phase of their work nearly completed, committee members noted that anyone who does not receive a letter may purchase patron tickets by contacting a member of the committee.

Reservations are also available by mailing requests to General Guild Follies '70', P. O. Box 1970, Circleville.

A list of patrons will be included in the program, Mrs. Ed Hedges said that due to a program printing deadline of Feb. 28, the tickets, which are reserved seats, should be purchased early. Patron tickets will be mailed before regular sales begin.

The upcoming variety show will be held in the Circleville High School Auditorium. Proceeds will be used for the benefit of Berger Hospital.

As a result of the profits from the three previous Follies which netted over $18,000.00, and other monies contributed by the guilds, five rooms in the maternity wing were completely remodeled and refurbished, giving the hospital 11 more patient beds. The cost of this was $9,250.49.

Other guild gifts to the hospital have included a refrigerator for the laboratory; and EKG transmitter; a new stove for the kitchen; a monitorscope, defibrillator and cabinet; and new light units for each of the hospital's 48 beds. The cost of these items came to over $6,100.00.

Westminster Class To Meet Tuesday

Westminster Bible Class will meet 2 p.m. Tuesday in the home of Mrs. W. A. Downing, N. Scioto St.

Solid Enjoyment's Built On Rock Lobster Tails

By ALICE DENHOFF

A delicious dinner can be built around South African rock lobster tails. They combine beautifully with many foods, and, of course, are good "as is" with plenty of drawn butter. How about stepping out a little in the kitchen world and doing this delectable dish:

ROCK LOBSTER STUFFED SQUASH

3 large zucchini, acorn or butternut squash
1/2 cup melted butter
Salt and pepper
3 packages (9 ounces each) frozen South African rock lobster tails

1 medium onion, chopped and sauteed in 2 tablespoons butter
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 1/2 cups diced cooked carrots
1/4 cup teaspoon oregano
2 cups grated sharp Cheddar cheese (8 ounces)

Cut zucchini in lengthwise halves, removing any seeds. Brush cut surface heavily with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place halves in a shallow casserole in a single layer. Bake, covered, at 350 degrees until zucchini is easily pierced with fork (about 30 minutes for zucchini, 1 hour for other varieties). Scoop out zucchini, but leave other squash whole.

Drop frozen rock lobster tails into boiling salted water. When water boils, cook for 2-3 minutes. Drain at once and drench with cold water. With scissors remove underside membrane; pull out meat in one piece.

Dice meat and mix with sauteed onion, celery, carrots, oregano. Stuff squash with mixture; sprinkle with cheese. Replace in oven; bake another 15 to 20 minutes or until cheese is melted and squash is hot. This serves 6 nicely.

ROCK LOBSTER CHOW MEIN

1 package (9 ounce) South African rock lobster tails
1/4 cup each, cooking oil or melted shortening
1/4 cup celery leaves, minced
1/2 cup minced onion
1 (no. 2) can bean sprouts
1 (3 ounces) can sliced broiled-in-butter mushrooms
1 cup water
1/4 cup flour
1 cup minced celery
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt

1 to 3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 (No. 2 1/2) can Chinese noodles
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Cook frozen rock lobster tails as detailed above, cubing the meat. Set cubed meat aside.

Heat oil or shortening. Add celery leaves and onion; cook until yellow. Drain bean sprouts and mushrooms. Add drained liquid, 1 cup water, and celery to skillet mixture. Simmer, covered, 15 minutes.

Mix flour to a smooth paste with 1/2 cup water; stir into hot mixture. Add sugar, salt and soy sauce to taste. Add rock lobster meat. Cover and simmer over low heat until well heated, about 5 minutes.

Serve rock lobster mixture over noodles and garnish with egg slices.

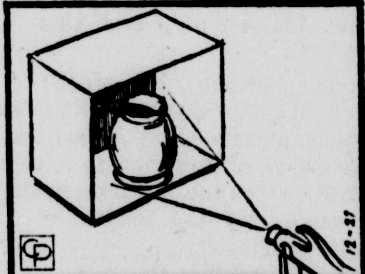

ROCK LOBSTER IN POTATO RING

3 packages (9 ounces each) S. A. rock lobster tails
4 medium potatoes
3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup cream
2 teaspoons scraped onion
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper

Boil rock lobster tails and remove meat as detailed in prior recipes. Cut meat into bite-sized chunks. Boil potatoes in salted water until done. Make cream sauce of next 4 ingredients. Add seasonings and rock lobster chunks. While this is heating over a low flame, mash potatoes. Make a ring of mashed potatoes on heat-proof platter, pressing into shape with fork tines. Brush potatoes with butter or egg white and put under broiler to brown lightly; remove from heat.

To serve, fill center of ring with rock lobster mixture. Garnish with one empty rock lobster tail. Serves 8.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

She Can Still Win This Race!

DEAR ABBY: I knew when I married my husband that his first love would always be horses. I never minded being second to a horse, but now I think a female bipped has put me in third place.

This woman is not married. She has horses of her own and she relies on my husband for help and advice about her horses. They seem to spend a lot of time together. I am invited to join them, but what fun is there for me when there is nothing but horse talk?

People who know her say that she has no women friends, enjoys the company of men, doesn't want the responsibilities of marriage.

I love my husband too much to leave him, but I was much happier before this horsey dame came along. My husband keeps telling me that I have nothing to worry about, but for the first time in my life I am jealous. Please tell me what to do.

THIRD PLACE
DEAR THIRD: Take it from the horse's mouth, your husband is probably just feeling his oats. Turn the twosome into a trio, brush up on your knowledge of horses, and you may win by a nose.

DEAR ABBY: The facts are as follows: "Mr. Phyllis" is a hairdresser who works on commission. After his day's work at the shop or on Sunday, or his day off, occasionally he goes to the home of a patron to set her hair there. (It is usually for a wedding or some special occasion, and let me add that these patrons go to the shop regularly, too, so it is not as though Mr. Phyllis is taking any business away from the shop.)

My question: Do you think the shop is entitled to a commission on the services rendered by Mr. Phyllis OUTSIDE the shop?

DEAR INTERESTED: As I see it, what "Mr. Phyllis" does on his own time is HIS business. And if he wants to do business after business hours, that's also his business.

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and takes care of it almost entirely by telephone, which means he is home all the time, and frankly, Abby, he gets underfoot.

I am the type of woman who likes a clean and orderly house, and I have my own way of doing things. I like to give each room a thorough cleaning, then I know that it's done, and I can sit down and relax. But with my husband home all the time, he's always in my way and I just hate having to clean "around" him.

If I could get him out of the way for just three full hours so I could clean properly, I'd be the happiest woman in the world. When I try to tell my husband how I hate to clean around him, he says, "Quit nagging me." What should I do?

BOTHERED
DEAR BOTHERED: The next time you tell your husband how you hate to clean around him, listen to yourself. Do you come over like a loving, slightly "helpless" housewife enlisting his cooperation? Or do you sound more like a whining, impatient shrew whose demands have put him on the defensive? Then, perhaps you can answer your own question.

DEAR ABBY: Don't give up your campaign against those god-awful, ugly, clumsy shoes that women are supposed to wear this season.

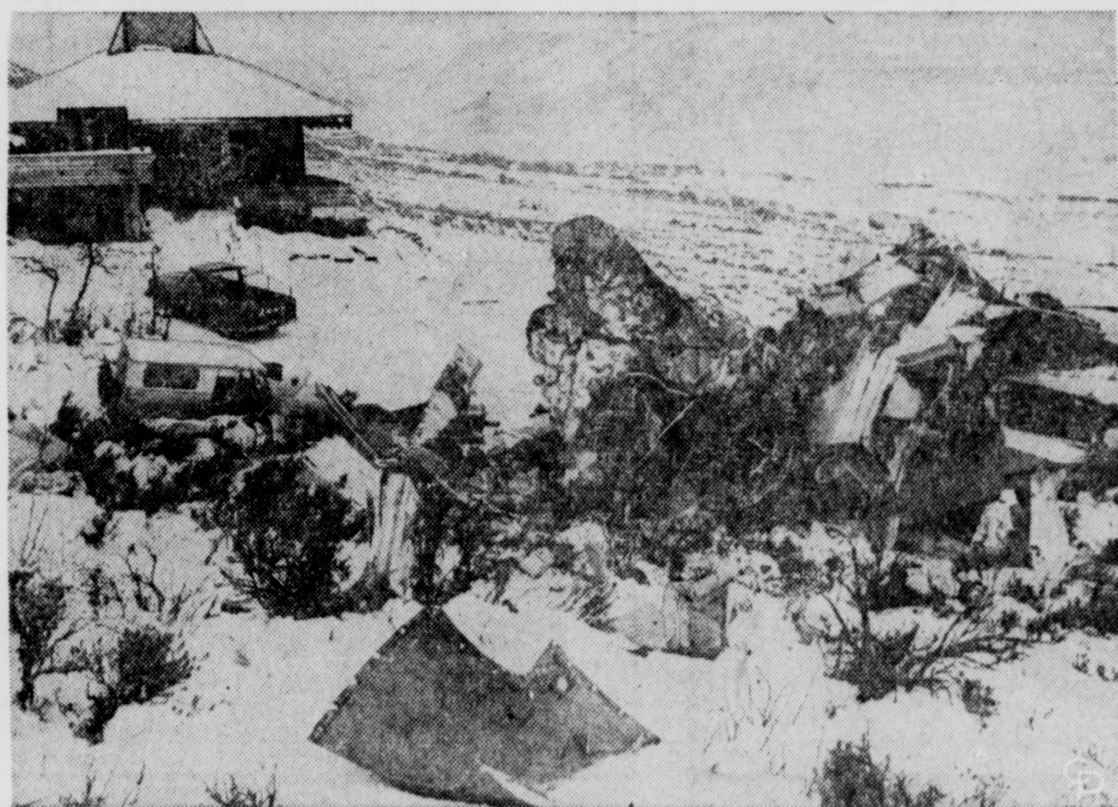

My husband has been in the retail shoe business for many, many years, and he tells me that the shoes he has to show his customer now are the most unflattering he has ever seen. In fact, he says that he actually has to turn his back whenever he shows these clodhoppers to the lady customer.

Abby, no woman I've talked to likes these shoes, but they buy them because so few women take the trouble to complain; they feel somebody else should do the complaining. If all the women who read this letter object to being shifted from needle-toe, foot-crippling styles to these clodhopper shoes, the manufacturers would stop this fad of built-in obsolescence.

Tell women who are unhappy with shoe styles to write to the National Shoe Retailers Association, 200 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10016. Otherwise the shoes next year will be so unflattering you won't be able to tell the men's shoes from the women's.

Do not use my name or my husband will kill me.

Some Color Television Sets Hit As Fire Hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Commission on Product Safety says 122 models of color television sets have been exploding or catching fire at an above-average rate.

The commission's decision Monday to identify the models brought an accusation from the Electronics Industries Association that the commission was creating an unfair competitive advantage for some manufacturers.

The commission said the nation's 22 million color sets have been catching fire at the rate of 12 per 100,000. It said the sets it identified were igniting at the rate of 30 per 100,000.

Olympic television sets manufactured by Lear Siegler Corp. averaged the highest rate in the industry, the commission said. It said nine of the firm's models were identified as potential hazards.

Stamp Dispenser Carried Away

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ralph Hargrove deposited a nickel in the stamp dispenser in Augusta's main post office Tuesday and the machine didn't stop until it had piled some 500 five-cent stamps onto the post office floor. That's 40 feet of postage.

Hargrove summoned a post office employee who rolled the stamps back into the dispenser. Then Hargrove asked the postman to sell him the five cent stamp the old fashioned way—by hand.

Hickel To Speak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel will speak on "Environment: Challenge of the Seventies" at an Ohio State University-Centennial Symposium Feb. 12.

The other firms identified as exceeding the industry average were, in descending order: Packard Bell, Magnavox,ylvania, Philco-Ford, and RCA.

Five firms were identified as having an incidence rate below the industry average, although some models caught fire at the 30-per-100,000 rate. The firms, in descending order, were: General Electric, Admiral, Motorola, Emerson, and Warwick (Sears). The commission, which has been conferring with the industry for three months on the issue, sent letters asking the manufacturers to recall, repair or replace faulty sets.

Commission chairman Arnold B. Elkind said some sets on the list might not be fire hazards but he added the information should be furnished to the public "rather than risk the consequences of fires in color television receivers."

In attacking the commission's action, Jack Wyman, staff vice president of the electronics association, said the report "will result in unduly alarming the public about the relatively limited problem." He said the problem of fires is small compared with the number of sets in American homes. "Television sets are safe products," he said.

Yarborough Set To Run Again

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Ralph Yarborough, 66-year-old Texas Democrat, has announced he will seek re-election this year.

Lloyd Bentsen, a Houston millionaire, will oppose Yarborough in the May 2 primary. In the general election, the primary winner is likely to face another Houston millionaire, Rep. George Bush, the only announced Republican candidate so far.

Bentsen, 48, and Bush, 45, have said they were willing to spend $1 million apiece on their campaigns. Yarborough commented Tuesday: "I've never spent that much money in my life."

City Asks Review Of Pollution Case

NEW YORK (AP) — The city has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review a case in which automobile manufacturers were charged with suppressing plans to reduce car exhaust pollution. "If the allegations in the government's complaint are true," said J. Lee Rankin, the city's corporation counsel, "the automobile industry has knowingly contributed to air pollution and probably to impairing the health of millions of people."

SPECIAL BUY! Fabulous fabric assortment of better all cotton and Dacron® polyester/cotton blends. Broadcloths, duck, twill and textured weaves. Prints and solids in the group. Buy yards and yards.

You could buy one of those small cars. But look what you don't get.

Nova's anti-theft ignition key warning buzzer

Nova's Magic-Mirror acrylic lacquer finish

Nova's choice of three standard engines: 4, 6, or V8

Nova's room for five passengers and their luggage

Nova's foot-operated parking brake

Nova's bias belted ply tires

Nova's wider tread front and rear

Nova's four transmission choices

Nova's glove compartment with lock

Nova's cigarette lighter

Nova's day-night rearview mirror

Nova's more usable luggage capacity

Nova's rear windows that roll up and down

Nova's cargo-guard luggage compartment

Nova's forward-mounted door lock buttons

Nova's flush-and-dry rocker panels

Nova's computer-selected springs

Nova's inner fenders front and rear

Nova's got a lot to talk about. Because you get so much more value with a Nova. Things you just can't find on other cars anywhere near the price. Maybe that's why Nova is such a big seller. It offers what more people want. Along with a resale value that'll make some of those other cars seem even smaller by comparison. Putting you first, keeps us first.

Nova: America's not-too-small car

Mrs. Bette Melvin and Miss Sue Braskett were receptionists at the door of the local United Methodist Church for services this past Sunday. A normal sized congregation enjoyed the sermon "The Church," delivered by Rev. Carl Wetherell. Regular services next Sunday at 10:30 a.m. with receptionists David Drake and Skip Edwards. Mrs. Sandy Crego and Robin Melvin were in charge of the nursery this Sunday and in charge next Sunday Feb. 1, will be Mrs. Sharon Peters and Sue Braskett.

Among the patients — Mrs. Fred Warner is reported to have been ill for the past three weeks, but is now able to be in her own home on Ashville, Route 2.

Mr. Thomas Parmenter, who has been confined to his home for the past several weeks following several strokes, was rushed to Mercy Hospital by the Emergency Squad on Sunday evening. He has developed pneumonia and is in serious condition.

About all of the others are showing improvement at the present time and we wish them all a speedy and satisfactory recovery.

At their last meeting, the Community Men's Club transacted their regular business, elected new officers and worked on plans for various events for the coming season.

Officers elected were Bob O'Conner, president; John Stewart, vice president; James Albright, secretary; and Emery Fannin, treasurer. The next meeting will be held in their club room at 8 p.m. on Feb. 11. Everyone is invited to attend as they are badly in need of new members.

A committee is working on plans for the Church First Anniversary Service to be held on Wednesday evening Feb. 18. There will be a visitation house-to-house in the two weeks previous, inviting everyone to attend and see the new church.

Men Rescued From Crash; Pilot Killed

JACKSON, Calif. (AP) — Two men who spent two weeks in the wreckage of a light plane with the body of the pilot are safe today because of an erroneous smoke report and the determination of friends.

Neither Eugene Ebell, 33, nor Robert Staar, 17, suffered major injury from the Jan. 11 crash or their 15 days without food. Pilot Donald Shaver was crushed in the crash in the Sierra Nevada mountains.

Ebell had chartered the plane in Fresno, the hometown of all three men, to fly to Elko, Nev., to pick up the body of an uncle who was to be buried in Fresno. Staar, a friend of the pilot, went along for the ride.

Ebell said the pilot tried to turn back over the Sierra Nevada because the plane's wings were icing but, in turning, they lost too much altitude and crashed.

Ebell and Staar were rescued by helicopter Monday from a rugged canyon 35 miles east of Jackson after Staar was spotted from the air.

They said they had heard and seen search planes regularly, but none came far enough up the mountains to see them. The crash site was near the 7,000-foot level of the Sierra about 180 miles east of San Francisco.

Staar set out Sunday to get help.

At the same time, searchers shifted their aerial hunt to the east because of an apparently erroneous report of smoke. On their way to the area Monday, Doyle Hawkins and helicopter pilot George Wurzburg spotted Staar beside a log where he had slept overnight after walking 3½ miles.

Up to 20 planes a day had searched the Sierra for the wreckage the first week, then gave up. Friends and relatives of the missing men collected $1,400 and hired the helicopter last Friday to continue the aerial hunt.

Doctors at Amador Hospital said the survivors were treated for exposure and minor frostbite. Ebell also had some crushed ribs.

Skunk Value Down

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — An official of the Colorado Game, Fish and Parks Department blames a drop in the fur market for a big increase in the skunk population of western Colorado. He said skunk pelts sold for $3.50 or $4 a few years ago, but now bring only $1.

and help support it.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby H. Trego are expecting to move into their newly remodeled home by Feb. 1. The old home-place has been completely remodeled, with new ceilings, walls, floors, carpeting, picture windows and aluminum siding. Another improvement for our town, and congratulations to the newlyweds. Mr. K. L. West and Mr. Omer Crego were the contractors for the improvements with Toole Electric Co., all from our local community.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Rush of Orient, Route 2, flew to Washington, D. C. last Friday evening to be with their daughter Carolyn who underwent surgery at a Washington Hospital on Saturday.

Kathy Younkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Younkin is recovering from an appendectomy, performed last week at Doctor's Hospital West.

She expects to return to her classes at Teays Valley High School this week.

Mrs. Harold Estep of Hiner Rd. talked with her son James in Valley Forge General Hospital on Saturday and he is showing fine results from surgery and treatment. Pvt. Estep was seriously injured by shrapnel from a mine explosion in Vietnam last month. He is expected to be home for a visit soon.

Sunday visitors of the Esteps were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Householder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Junior Beatty and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Ziener and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schooley and family.

The Community Men's Club is sponsoring a Spaghetti Supper at the Scioto School Cafeteria on Saturday Feb. 14. Serving from 4:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Loring Albright

Circleville, Ohio

and Mr. and Mrs. James Albright and son Jim II, spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Hutchinson of 6225 Oakhurst Dr. Columbus.

The local Volunteer Fire Dept. is planning on having an outstanding Country and Western Variety Show in the early spring. At least two nationally famous entertainers will be with the show. Details in full will be announced later.

We have been very fortunate during the wintry blast — Fire calls and Emergency runs have been held to a minimum.

With better weather coming, your correspondent will be able to be out again after a bad fall, and will probably be able to garner more news. Your help with "tips" will be appreciated.

NEW YORK AP — CBS news department's program.

"The Day They Had to Close the Schools," was timely and consisted of a long if not particularly deep look at the money troubles of the U.S. educational system.

The program Tuesday night focused on Fremont, Ohio, which was faced with closing the community schools after a school tax levy was voted down.

Narrator Daniel Schorr pinpointed the problem of "explosive population and exploding taxpayers" in noting the large number of recent school bond issues rejected by voters.

Fremont's story was rather heartening. It rallied around in the emergency, finally voting the levy and paying its property taxes in advance to accumulate immediate funds.

Almost glossed over was the reason behind the resistance of many of the voters—steadily increased property taxes and, as one woman snapped, a feeling that no efforts were made to economize.

Schorr noted that 10 Ohio communities did suspend classes because of a lack of funds. The program concluded with interviews with public officials on methods of handling the education emergency. Generally, efforts are in the direction of taking the major burden off local property tax and having states pay the school tax.

Those children of all ages who love the circus—even the televised kind—had their annual sampling Tuesday night of the Greatest Show on Earth, with the addition of instant replays in slow motion.

The NBC special showing highlights of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus had all the usual treats—high flying acts, elephants, big cats, clowns, acrobats, dancing bears and colorful processions. And cameramen used that familiar football technique to show, in slow motion, a double flip off a trapeze, a woman jumping from a 30-foot-high platform into the arms of her partners and two human cannon balls flying across the auditorium. It provided an interesting new dimension.

Network executives are beginning to play their annual chess game in which the entertainment series are pawns.

Programming heads probably know now which current programs are unlikely to survive.

Strongsville Police Find Merchandise

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Suburban Strongsville police say they have uncovered what they believe is the warehouse for expensive merchandise taken in recent Cleveland area burglaries.

Police said Tuesday that three persons have been arrested and a fourth is under investigation for selling obscene films which were confiscated along with $15,000 in stolen goods Friday in a raid at a service station.

Nick Martin, 51, owner of the station, was charged with receiving stolen property. He was released Friday on $1,000 bond after pleading innocent to the charge in Berea Municipal Court. Martin has a record for burglary and receiving stolen property.

Strongsville officials presented evidence to the Cuyahoga County Grand Jury Tuesday on Martin and a 23-year-old suburban Brooklyn man.

A Middleburg Heights high school junior, arrested earlier in the month for burglary, also faces delinquency charges in connection with the investigation police said.

Police said they confiscated jewelry, cameras, guns and tools. Officers also said they confiscated 121 stag films.

The famous double-decker bus of London first appeared in the English capital about 1850. It was a horse-drawn, open-air conveyance dubbed a "knife-board." Passengers faced outward and sat back to back on two benches running the length of the roof.

Schoolboys Held For Selling Drug

NEW YORK (AP) — Three schoolboys, ages 11, 13 and 15, were arrested Tuesday, accused by police of selling heroin after class in the Coney Island section of Brooklyn.

Detectives who seized them said the three, one a fifth-grader, the others seventh-graders, each got 30 envelopes of heroin daily from an adult supplier who came by every two hours to collect the receipts.

Police said each of the three cleared $50 daily, selling the drug at $10 an envelope, while the supplier got $750 a day.

The three were charged with juvenile delinquency and ordered to appear in Children's Court.

Nation's Young Physicists Have Trouble Getting Jobs

By C. G. MCDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Some of the nation's elite young scientists are having a hard time finding jobs.

The cutback in federal and state government research funds was the prime reason for the situation given by scientists interviewed Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Physical Society.

A job placement service for physicists is maintained each year in connection with this meeting.

This year, only about 100 potential employers—mainly industrial and academic—have registered their desire to interview job applicants. Nearly 1,500 applicants, all with Ph.D. degrees, are seeking jobs.

Last year, 1,285 applicants were formally interviewed by 167 employers. In 1967, 272 employers could choose from 895 applicants.

A Ph.D. physicist can expect $9,000 a year or more in his first job.

Dr. Robert Beck Clark, a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Texas, said the present abundance of physicists is an outgrowth of the nation's effort to produce more scientists after the Soviet Union launched Sputnik in 1957.

Young people in high school were told "to go into science and you'll be in a good fix," and many did, he said.

But government cutbacks reduced research positions at institutions, he said, and industries no longer want "narrowly trained physicist" to do engineering work.

Clark said there "is still a crying need for good physics teachers" in high schools and junior colleges.

However, Dr. H. Richard

Clark, professor of physics at the University of Michigan and past president of the American Association of Physics Teachers, said that as a group the Ph.D. probably would not be good teachers at this level—they are trained primarily in research.

Dr. Arnold Strassenburg, director of the division of education and manpower at the American Institute of Physics, said there "is no significant number" of physicists actually unemployed.

"But there is a great number, and it's increasing, of those who are not getting the jobs they want," he said.

MOTHER ABANDONS BABY GORILLA — Taken to Good Samaritan Hospital when its mother refused to nurse it at the Cincinnati Zoo, a baby gorilla is cradled by nurse Barbara Mellot. The infant, Sam, appears to be thriving.

Cincy Strikers Planning March

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jesse Epps, trouble-shooter for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), who worked closely with the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., during the 1968 garbage strike in Memphis, Tenn., will lead the striking city workers' mass downtown march today and address City Council.

"It appears I'm always involved in conflict," Epps said late Tuesday night after his arrival from Washington D. C. He said he came to advise the striking 1,500 Cincinnati workers who have been out now for 24 days in a wage dispute. King was killed during the 1968 Memphis dispute.

"We are trying to find the wielders of power here. It is not the mayor or city manager but the business community. We have to get their ear. We will take the poor man's fight to the rich man's door."

"At the rally at City Hall we will delineate what we are all about," he said.

The strikers called for a city-wide "sick" day for all union workers, teachers and citizens to support their strike. They will march across the downtown area to City Hall where Epps and Al Van Hagen, district director, will take the union case to City Council. Talks broke down again Monday and no new negotiations have been scheduled.

System Of Movie Ratings Amended By Film Industry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 15 months of what the film industry calls "gratifying success," its voluntary program of rating movies is being modified.

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said Tuesday one change was made because a survey had shown considerable confusion over the "M" rating—which meant a film was recommended for mature audiences only.

So that category is being dropped in favor of "GP." This means all ages may view the movie but that parental guidance or discretion is advised.

The other change raises the age limit for viewing films rated "R" restricted category—without an accompanying parent or legal guardian from 16 to 17.

Both changes are effective March 1.

Observers said the boost in the age limit may represent an attempt to broaden the "R" rating to include racy but serious films heretofore relegated to the "X" category for adults only.

Valenti has said he originally intended the X to be a "Leper colony" for films of no artistic quality. But it hasn't worked out that way.

Two of the most successful and critically acclaimed films of 1969—"Midnight Cowboy" and "Medium Cool" ended up in the X class.

Here is the new set of standards:

G—All ages admitted.

GP—All ages admitted, but parental discretion recommended.

R—Anyone under 17 must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

X—No one under 18 admitted. A survey conducted by the National Association of Theater Owners showed that 9 out of 10 theaters queried used the ratings in their advertising.

Valenti was joined in his announcement by Eugene Picker, president of the theater owners group, and Munio Podhorzer, a member of the governing board of the International Film Importers and Distributors of America.

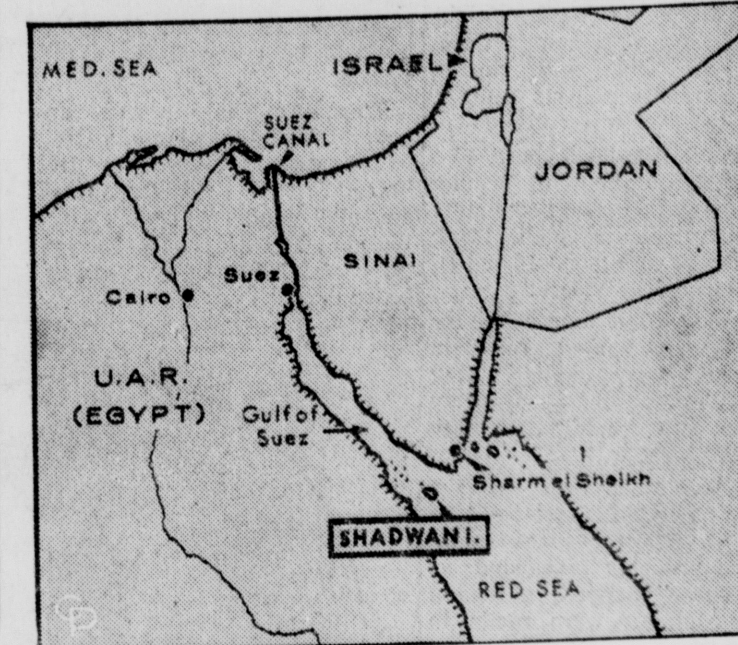

Saxbe And Young Split In Voting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two senators cast opposing votes Tuesday as the Senate approved, 70-15, an amendment to preserve, under more stringent procedures, the no-knock raid provision of the drug-control bill.

Republican William B. Saxbe voted for the amendment, while Democrat Stephen M. Young voted against it.

Nation's Young Physicists Have Trouble Getting Jobs

By C. G. MCDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Some of the nation's elite young scientists are having a hard time finding jobs.

The cutback in federal and state government research funds was the prime reason for the situation given by scientists interviewed Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Physical Society.

A job placement service for physicists is maintained each year in connection with this meeting.

This year, only about 100 potential employers—mainly industrial and academic—have registered their desire to interview job applicants. Nearly 1,500 applicants, all with Ph.D. degrees, are seeking jobs.

Last year, 1,285 applicants were formally interviewed by 167 employers. In 1967, 272 employers could choose from 895 applicants.

A Ph.D. physicist can expect $9,000 a year or more in his first job.

Dr. Robert Beck Clark, a postdoctoral fellow at the University of Texas, said the present abundance of physicists is an outgrowth of the nation's effort to produce more scientists after the Soviet Union launched Sputnik in 1957.

Young people in high school were told "to go into science and you'll be in a good fix," and many did, he said.

But government cutbacks reduced research positions at institutions, he said, and industries no longer want "narrowly trained physicist" to do engineering work.

Clark said there "is still a crying need for good physics teachers" in high schools and junior colleges.

However, Dr. H. Richard

Clark, professor of physics at the University of Michigan and past president of the American Association of Physics Teachers, said that as a group the Ph.D. probably would not be good teachers at this level—they are trained primarily in research.

Dr. Arnold Strassenburg, director of the division of education and manpower at the American Institute of Physics, said there "is no significant number" of physicists actually unemployed.

"But there is a great number, and it's increasing, of those who are not getting the jobs they want," he said.

Cincy Strikers Planning March

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jesse Epps, trouble-shooter for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), who worked closely with the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., during the 1968 garbage strike in Memphis, Tenn., will lead the striking city workers' mass downtown march today and address City Council.

"It appears I'm always involved in conflict," Epps said late Tuesday night after his arrival from Washington D. C. He said he came to advise the striking 1,500 Cincinnati workers who have been out now for 24 days in a wage dispute. King was killed during the 1968 Memphis dispute.

"We are trying to find the welders of power here. It is not the mayor or city manager but the business community. We have to get their ear. We will take the poor man's fight to the rich man's door."

"At the rally at City Hall we will delineate what we are all about," he said.

The strikers called for a city-wide "sick" day for all union workers, teachers and citizens to support their strike. They will march across the downtown area to City Hall where Epps and Al Van Hagen, district director, will take the union case to City Council. Talks broke down again Monday and no new negotiations have been scheduled.

System Of Movie Ratings Amended By Film Industry

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — After 15 months of what the film industry calls "gratifying success," its voluntary program of rating movies is being modified.

Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said Tuesday one change was made because a survey had shown considerable confusion over the "M" rating—which meant a film was recommended for mature audiences only.

So that category is being dropped in favor of "GP." This means all ages may view the movie but that parental guidance or discretion is advised.

The other change raises the age limit for viewing films rated "R" restricted category—without an accompanying parent or legal guardian from 16 to 17.

Both changes are effective March 1.

Observers said the boost in the age limit may represent an attempt to broaden the "R" rating to include racy but serious films heretofore relegated to the "X" category for adults only.

Valenti has said he originally intended the X to be a "Leper colony" for films of no artistic quality. But it hasn't worked out that way.

Two of the most successful and critically acclaimed films of 1969—"Midnight Cowboy" and "Medium Cool" ended up in the X class.

Here is the new set of standards:

G—All ages admitted. GP—All ages admitted, but parental discretion recommended.

R—Anyone under 17 must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

X—No one under 18 admitted. A survey conducted by the National Association of Theater Owners showed that 9 out of 10 theaters queried used the ratings in their advertising.

Valenti was joined in his announcement by Eugene Picker, president of the theater owners group, and Munio Podhorzer, a member of the governing board of the International Film Importers and Distributors of America.

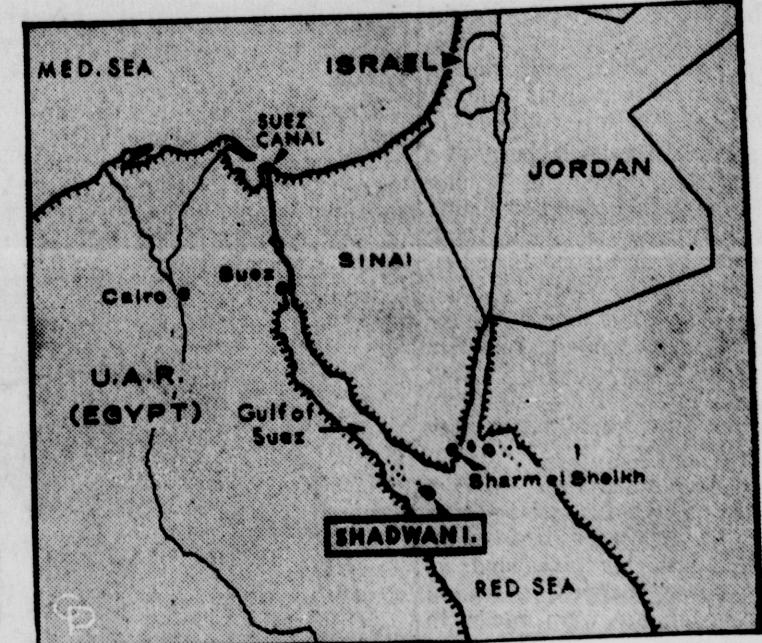

Saxbe And Young Split In Voting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two senators cast opposing votes Tuesday as the Senate approved, 70-15, an amendment to preserve, under more stringent procedures, the no-knock raid provision of the drug-control bill.

Republican William B. Saxbe voted for the amendment, while Democrat Stephen M. Young voted against it.

There were 55 present at the United Methodist Sunday School. Worship service followed with Rev. Lillian Wright delivering the sermon. The official board meeting was held Monday evening at the church. Methodist Social Hour Club meeting will not be held on the regular night due to the severe weather. The next regular meeting will be held in February.

Mr. and Mrs. Otha Lewis, Miss Laura Long and Harold Furniss, members of Star Grange, attended the Grange legislative meeting Friday evening in the 4-H Grange building at Circleville. Star and Nebraska Granges were hosts for the light refreshments that were served at the close of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parker and daughters Peggy and Patty of Columbus were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. Shirley Anderson.

Rev. I. C. Wright, a former pastor of this community, is a patient in Reid Memorial Hospital, at Richmond, Ind. The Rev. and Mrs. Wright, residents of Clarksburg, went to Centerville, Ind., in November to make their home with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright, because of failing health. Ohio Drug Usage Said 'Alarming'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The possible million Ohioans who are steady or occasional users of drugs presents a problem of "alarming" proportion, the state's mental hygiene chief said Tuesday.

The comment was made by Martin A. Janis, director of the Department of Mental Hygiene and Correction, in a letter to Gov. James A. Rhodes.

The letter commented on legislative proposals being made by the attorney general to meet the drug problem. The estimate of the number of Ohioans who may be using drugs was made by doctors in the mental hygiene division, based on nationwide figures presented by federal authorities.

"There seems little doubt the drug abuse problem has reached alarming proportions," Janis said, agreeing with an attorney general's report on proposed legislation.

Janis noted, however, that there are implied questions in the proposals relating to financing that are still to be answered.

The proposed new laws, among other things, would provide probationary treatment for first offenders of the drug laws, state treatment centers in a system of local clinics and other measures.

Linemen, Defensive Backs Top Commodity In Draft

By MIKE RATHET Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's draft resumed today following an opening session that put Terry Bradshaw in position to challenge O. J. Simpson's record $300,000 contract and sent Steve Owens scurrying back to his agent for a quick re-count.

Browns, Bengals Pick Phipps, Reid In Player Draft

Mike Phipps Mike Reid

CHOICE PICKS — Mike Phipps, Purdue's All-American quarterback, and Penn State's All-American tackle, Mike Reid, were the first round picks of the Cleveland Browns and the Cincinnati Bengals respectively. Phipps will provide depth for the Browns at the signal slot and Reid will add line strength to the Bengals.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cleveland Browns grabbed all-American quarterback Mike Phipps of Purdue and the Cincinnati Bengals took Mike Reid, Penn State's All-American defensive tackle, as their first choices in the pro football draft Tuesday.

The Browns' selection of Phipps, who threw 23 touchdown passes last season, resulted from Cleveland's surprising deal Monday night in which Paul Warfield was traded to Miami for a first-round draft pick.

Concern about Bill Nelsen's battered knees and the arm that went dead in the NFL championship game prompted the draft of Phipps.

Reid, who won the Maxwell trophy and the Cutland Trophy, went to Cincinnati as the seventh pick of the first round. "I can't think of a more advantageous place to play," said Reid, a 235-pounder who Bengals Coach Paul Brown expects to be a starter. "I don't think you can beat playing for Coach Brown," Reid added.

Cleveland got eight selections and Cincinnati seven Tuesday. The draft continued today.

Other Cleveland selections Tuesday: Bob McKay, a tackle, from Texas; Joe Jones, defensive end, Tennessee State; Jerry Sher, defensive tackle, Oklahoma State; Ricky Stevenson, defensive back, Arizona; Steve Engel, running back, Colorado; Mike Cilek, quarterback, Iowa, and Craig Wycin-

Bradshaw and Owens, the two most heralded members of college football's elite, wound up in substantially different negotiating stances Tuesday as the 26 pro football teams drafted the first 182 of 442 players to be taken in the two-day selection session.

Bradshaw, a blond 6-foot-3 Little All-America quarterback from Louisiana Tech, established himself as a strong threat to take a crack at Simpson's contract record when he was made the No. 1 selection in the entire draft by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Owens, the Heisman Trophy winning running back from Oklahoma, lost a good deal of his luster when he wasn't picked until the Detroit Lions tapped him No. 19 in the first round—after three other running backs had been selected.

The contract target for the outstanding collegians was set last year by Simpson, the Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California who signed with the Buffalo Bills for $210,000 in salary, a $100,000 loan and some $25,000 in performance clauses.

Despite the latest developments, however, neither was issuing detailed contract positions although Owens, who watched the proceedings in person at the draft headquarters in the Belmont Plaza Hotel in midtown Manhattan, did say:

"I'm not concerned that much about money. I'm interested in playing football. Then the monetary phase will take care of itself. All I want to do is go out and play and be successful."

But he did speculate that unjustified criticism of his speed and blocking ability might have been the reason for his low selection.

"I think things have been said that are unjustified," he said. "It bothers me—people saying things they don't know too much about. But it all boils down to performance. The only way to prove people wrong is to perform."

Other Cincinnati selections Tuesday: Ron Carpenter, defensive tackle, North Carolina State; Chick Bennett, linebacker, Abilene Christian; Joe Stephen, guard, Jackson State; Billy Hayes, defensive back, South Dakota State; Sandy Durko, defensive back, Southern California, and Lamar Parrish, defensive back, Lincoln.

Todd Snyder, Ohio University's wide receiver, was picked by Atlanta; Ted Provost, a defensive back at Ohio State was chosen by Los Angeles; Toledo's Curtis Johnson, a defensive back, was selected by Miami; Gary Arthur, a tight end at Miami, was tabbed by the New York Jets, and Jim O'Brien, a wide receiver at Cincinnati, was snared by Baltimore.

St. Louis grabbed four Ohio college players: James Corrigan, linebacker at Kent State; Charlie Hutchinson, an Ohio State guard; Tom Lloyd, tackle for Bowling Green, and James Manuel, tackle at Toledo.

"I hope and pray I can live up to everybody's expectations," he said. "I'm really proud and thrilled. It's unbelievable to be selected first. I had a nervous sweat waiting for the phone to ring."

But when he was asked if he thought the Steelers, who have three other quarterbacks, might trade him to another club he seemed to change just a bit.

"They seemed," he said, "to be real excited about having me. If they want to get rid of me, fine. But they didn't give me any indication that they were going to trade me."

The Steelers weren't giving any indication of that, either.

"He's a dedicated young man," said Coach Chuck Noll. "We made the decision on him as the best player in the draft. This is not a reflection on our people, just an analysis of the draft as it stands."

An analysis of the draft also showed the following after the first day:

—Offensive and defensive players were almost equally desired, although the No. 1 commodity seemed to be linemen and defensive backs. Offensively, 31 linemen were selected and defensively 32 were taken, while 34 defensive backs were chosen.

—Five trades were completed with the Chicago Bears again emphasizing established talent against the risk of selecting youthful help in the draft.

—The pro scouts reached out to tap players from colleges that normally do not figure early and reached beyond the United States for four players from the Canadian Leagues.

A complete breakdown of the first day's draft showed 90 offensive players, 89 defensive players and three kicking specialists chosen. Running backs were the big premium offensively after linemen with 18 picked, followed by 13 wide receivers, 6 tight ends and 5 quarterbacks. Besides the backs and linemen on defense, 23 linebackers were selected.

That emphasis on linemen was reflected quickly on the first round. After Pittsburgh took Bradshaw, Green Bay selected Notre Dame's huge defensive tackle, Mike McCoy. Cleveland then tapped the other highly rated quarterback, Mike Phipps of Purdue, and then Boston and Buffalo went back to picking off defensive linemen.

The Patriots took Phil Olsen, a defensive tackle from Utah State who is the little brother of Merlin Olsen of the Los Angeles Rams, and the Bills picked Al Cowling, a defensive end from Southern California.

Other linemen picked on the first round were Penn State defensive tackle Mike Reid by Cincinnati, North Texas State defensive end Cedric Hardman by San Francisco, North Carolina Central guard Doug Wilderson by Houston, Texas defensive tackle Bob McKay by Cleveland, Oklahoma State tackle John Ward by Minnesota and USC tackle Sid Smith by Kansas City.

In the other interesting development, the three running backs drafted ahead of Owens were Larry Stagent of Texas A&M by St. Louis, Bob Anderson of Colorado by Denver and Norm Bulach of TCU by Baltimore.

In the trades, Cleveland sent quarterback Jerry Rhome to County Teams See Action This Weekend

Teays Valley and Logan Elm go to the boards one time this weekend while Westfall will see action twice.

The Vikings of Teays Valley travel to Franklin Heights Friday to take on the Falcons in a Metropolitan League clash.

Coming off a big win over West Jefferson last Friday Coach Bob Hoover's cagers will be out to protect their share of the loop lead.

Heights has had a rather disappointing season but the Vikings know that the ball can take strange bounces and they will be prepared.

Westfall will return home Saturday to battle the Southeastern squad in a non-conference fray.

Teays Valley now stands 11-3 on the season and are sharing the Metropolitan League lead with West Jefferson as both are 5-1 in league play.

Westfall and Logan Elm have identical season records of 6-3. The Mustangs are 3-2 in the Scioto Valley Conference and the Braves have a Conference standing of 2-2.

2nd Ranked Pioneers Win 15 Straight

Zane Trace, second ranked in state standing, completely overpowered Unioto as they downed the Shermans 90-27 Tuesday night.

Unioto was tough to three field goals by a tough man to man defense and full court press employed by the Pioneers.

The Shermans only managed 30 shots from the field and connected three times. The Pioneers displayed a hot hand hitting 35 of 57 from the floor for an amazing 62 per cent.

Jeff Reisinger again paced the Pioneers hitting 11 from the field and eight from the charity stripe for a total of 30 points.

Zane Trace has a win streak of 15 straight this year while Unioto is now 5-8 on the season.

Westfall will go to the boards Friday and Saturday with Laureville and Southeastern.

The Mustangs will tackle the tough Laureville cagers Friday on the Wildcats floor.

Laureville has 14 consecutive wins to their credit and will be out to add to it. The Wildcats give up height, one six footer on the squad, but nothing else as they display a brand of ball that is tough to contain.

IT will take a real effort on the part of the Mustangs and will necessitate a big performance by Greg Bigam and company if they are to bag a Wildcat.

Ohio Track Coaches Clinic Scheduled

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio State Track Coaches Clinic will be held Friday and Saturday with Chuck Zody of Miami and Jack Landrum of Capital among featured speakers.

The program also will include an indoor triangular track meet Saturday between Ohio State, William and Mary and Florida.

Practice Set For Piranhas

Circleville's "Piranha" Swim Team held their first winter practice session Saturday at the Chillicothe YMCA pool with 88 swimmers in attendance.

Team officials were quite pleased with the turnout which was the largest in swim team history.

"The large number of swimmers gives us depth," Coach Jim Shea offered, "and Circleville will be a team to watch in the Mt. Pleasant league and Invitational Meets throughout central Ohio."

Shea would like to have 100 swimmers on the team and anyone interested in joining can call 474-3650 during the day and 474-6242 in the evening.

Weekly practices will be held at the Chillicothe YMCA through the month of May.

Best Horse Undecided

NEW YORK (AP) — The wheel of fortune for the best 3-year-old thoroughbred of 1970 has stopped on Silent Screen. But it will spin a lot more before a champion is decided.

And it is the spinning from now until the middle of June that annually creates the greatest excitement in racing. For it is in this period that the top 3-year-olds prep for and compete in the Triple Crown races—the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Adding spice to the situation are the facts that some of them are not even known yet, being lightly raced or not raced at all as 2-year-olds; some of the best 2-year-olds might not run back to form; lesser 2-year-olds could show marked improvement; some could be injured.

But for now, Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Werblin's Silent Screen, a chestnut son of Prince John-Prayer Bell, rules as the colt to beat.

He was the 2-year-old champion and was given high weight of 128 pounds in the Jockey Club's Experimental Free Handicap.

Others to watch are Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' High Echelon, Herbert Allen's Forum, Charles Englehard's Protantone, Hickory Tree Stable's Hagley, Wheatley Stable's Irish Castle and Brave Emperor, Raymond M. Curtis' My Dad George and Red Brick Stable's Ring For Nurse.

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's draft resumed today following an opening session that put Terry Bradshaw in position to challenge O. J. Simpson's record $300,000 contract and sent Steve Owens scurrying back to his agent for a quick re-count.

Bradshaw and Owens, the two most heralded members of college football's elite, wound up in substantially different negotiating stances Tuesday as the 26 pro football teams drafted the first 182 of 442 players to be taken in the two-day selection session.

Bradshaw, a blond 6-foot-3 Little All-America quarterback from Louisiana Tech, established himself as a strong threat to take a crack at Simpson's contract record when he was made the No. 1 selection in the entire draft by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

But he did speculate that unjustified criticism of his speed and blocking ability might have been the reason for his low selection.

"I think things have been said that are unjustified," he said. "It bothers me—people saying things they don't know too much about. But it all boils down to performance. The only way to prove people wrong is to perform."

Bradshaw, who was at his home in Shreveport, La., when he became the first No. 1 pick taken from a small school since Kansas City tapped defensive tackle Buck Buchanan from Grambling in 1963, took the first news of his selection modestly.

"I hope and pray I can live up to everybody's expectations," he said. "I'm really proud and thrilled. It's unbelievable to be selected first. I had a nervous sweat waiting for the phone to ring."

But when he was asked if he thought the Steelers, who have three other quarterbacks, might trade him to another club he seemed to change just a bit.

$5.5 Million In Cold Cash Needed To Keep Pilots

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Five and one-half million dollars — cold, hard cash in the bank—is what appears to be necessary to keep the Seattle Pilots baseball club from ignominiously leaving town after just one year there.

American League owners scheduled a second day of meetings here today, hoping to hear that a group of Seattle businessmen will be able to come up with that sum.

Those businessmen, though, will be in nearby San Francisco, running up a phone bill in a last, desperate attempt to get the money and keep the Pilots from moving to Dallas - Fort Worth or Milwaukee, whose representatives are on hand to move in for the kill if the Seattle bid fails.

It is clear the league owners want to keep the team in Seattle, if only to prevent a lawsuit that Mayor Wes Uhlman has threatened if they leave. But money was the problem when the meetings here started and it is the problem today.

The only real development after 10½ hours of meetings Tuesday was the reduction of the price of the Pilots.

In October the league approved a sale price of $10.3 million and the club was to be sold from Cleveland businessman William Daley to a group headed by Seattle businessmen Fred Danz and Edward Carlson.

But then it was learned that a $3.5 million bank loan given to the original ownership would come due if the club was sold. Danz and Carlson couldn't pay it and the present crisis arose.

Tuesday, Daley's group agreed to accept $9 million for the club, saying it was foregoing all profit in doing so.

But it was difficult to see how this would solve the problem of the $3.5 million bank loan.

In addition, the new owners will need at least $2 million to run the club next year, meaning at least $5.5 million is needed right away regardless of whatever long-term payment idea might be worked out with Daley.

and making the matter more difficult for Carlson and Danz is the time factor. With spring training less than a month away, the league must come to a final decision soon, though perhaps not at the present meetings.

"I would think they would have about a week," said Ewing Kaufman, Kansas City Royals owner who is chairman of a four-man committee considering the problem.

Carlson was hopeful he could find the necessary financing, even though he had not been able to do so in his attempts since August.

Basketball was invented by Canadian James A. Naismith. He chose the name basketball, because its original purpose was to toss a round ball into half-bushel peach baskets.

The first basketball game, however, was played in the U.S., in Springfield Mass., in January 1892. Today basketball is played in more than 60 countries.

Man To Beat In Tourney

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, golf's third millionaire and the most feared competitor on the pro tour, loomed as the man to beat in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

He always has to be ranked among the favorites—particularly so when, as now, he has his awesome game in harness.

"He plays a different part of the golf course," a fellow pro once said of Nicklaus' booming drives. He's generally regarded as the longest hitter on the tour. Some rank tall Tom Weiskopf with him.

"When Jack wants to hit it," Weiskopf said, "Nobodies stays up with him."

"I've been playing pretty well in the past weeks," Nicklaus admitted, "but you never know from week to week."

Recent performance charts, however, would show him with the hottest hand in the game. In his last five starts big Jack has finished first, first, second, sixth and second.

The last, of course, was last week when he came from five strokes off the pace in the final round of the Bing Crosby at Pebble Beach with a sparkling 65 and came within one stroke

Cincy Whips Wichita State 96-78; Ogletree A Leader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While little Don Ogletree wasn't the top scorer in Cincinnati's 86-78 basketball victory over Wichita State Tuesday night, Coach Tay Baker thinks he did a great job.

"He's the most consistent player on the team," Baker said after the game. "People don't appreciate him because he isn't scoring as many points as he did last year."

"Look at this," said Baker, pointing to the statistics. "Eight assists. Why, that's only one less than the whole Wichita team had."

The Bearcat's Charlie Snow took scoring honors with a career high 20 points. Jim Ard had 19 and Ogletree netted 18 as Cincinnati posted its third straight win and fourth in Missouri Valley Conference play.

Wichita's Greg Carney, the league's leading scorer with a 23.1 average, was held to 18 points in the Shockers' seventh straight loss and fourth in the MVC.

Toledo evened up its Mid-American Conference record at 3-3 by whipping winless Kent State 73-47 Tuesday night.

Doug Hess, the Rockets' 7-foot center, paced his team with 23 points and 23 rebounds. Kent, now 0-6 in the loop, was led by Roger Evans with 13.

Tom Dinger racked up 38 points to lead Wooster to a 37-89 come-from-behind Ohio Conference victory over Baldwin-Wallace. The Scots wiped out a 35-42 Baldwin-Wallace lead at halftime to post their seventh straight win and fifth in the league against two losses.

Otterbein's Lorenzo Hunt and Dwight Miller each scored 23 points as the Cardinals downed Defiance 94-84. Larry Holden tallied 27 points for the losers.

Basketball Game Ends; Score 4-0

HOLTON, Kan. (AP) — Jackson Heights shut out Dover High School, 4-0, that's right, four to nothing in a basketball game here Tuesday night.

Jackson Heights got a basket in the first quarter and scored again in the final quarter.

Except for those two brief outbursts the spectators were treated to an unusual display of "I control."

State Raps

SERS Costs, Absences

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Current and past officials of the School Employees Retirement System (SERS) were criticized by the state auditor's office Tuesday for excessive expenses and absences.

The auditor's report, covering fiscal 1969, questioned entertainment expenses turned in by SERS board members Herschel Wilson Jr. of Mentor, H. Lewis Shamberger of Cleveland and Pertha Weist of Kettering.

The report said the board spent $12,552 on travel, lodging and entertainment. That was $2,825 more than they had budgeted.

James R. Duquette, who was SERS executive director from March-October last year, was criticized for spending only about two days per week in his office.

The auditor's report did not indicate what Duquette did with the rest of the time, and SERS officials were not available for comment on the matter.

Durward L. Vochem served as acting director during most of the audit period. He also could not be reached for comment.

Seminoles Defeat Jacksonville, 89-83

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
This may be the year of the Seminoles in college basketball. The Florida State Seminoles from Tallahassee knocked sixth-ranked Jacksonville out of the unbeaten ranks with a 89-83 victory Tuesday night.

Jacksonville, paced by 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore, had won 13 in a row and nearly pulled the game out of the fire after trailing by 15 points at 58-43 with five minutes gone in the second half.

The Dolphins pulled to within 80-76 with 2½ minutes left, but the inspired Seminoles hung on to win before 5,200 delighted fans in their home court of the C. C. Cowens Gym despite losing Dave Cowens and Skip Young on personal fouls.

"We felt Williams could overpower anybody Jacksonville had except Gilmore," Hugh Durham, Florida State coach, said afterwards. "He did just that and Cowens' great first half shooting pulled Gilmore from under the basket."

Durham referred to Willie Williams, who led the Seminoles with 22 points on nine field goals and 4-of-7 free throws. Cowens scored 19 before fouling out.

Florida State, No. 18 in this week's Associated Press poll, now has a record of 15-2.

New Mexico State and Marquette, fifth and seventh, respectively, in the AP poll, didn't stumble like Jacksonville.

The Aggies won their ninth straight and upped their season record to 17-1 by crushing West Texas State 88-65 at Amarillo. Jimmy Collins led the Aggies with 22 points.

Marquette, led by Ric Cobb's 18 points, hung on to defeat Wisconsin 60-51, at Milwaukee. Marquette spurred to a 30-10 lead, but the Badgers rallied to within five points at 56-51 with 1:24 left before they twice lost the ball on costly turnovers.

Davidson, No. 11 nationally, wiped out a 15-point deficit and beat West Virginia 87-82 at Morgantown, W. Va. Mike Maloy got 23 points for Davidson, but it was a corner shot by Jerry Kroll that put the Wildcats ahead for good at 55-54.

The 12th-ranked Houston Cougars scored on the road over Seattle 92-88 and 14th-ranked Penn whipped its Philadelphia city rival, LaSalle, 76-67.

Houston tied the score at 74-74 on Ollie Taylor's field goal, then went ahead to stay on Jeff Hickman's free throw. Tom Gribben and Dwight David each scored 21 points for the Cougars. Lou West and Sam Pierce each tallied 26 for the Chieftains.

Steve Bilsky's 17 points, along with Al Cotler's 11 points in the second half, helped Penn down LaSalle. Ken Durrett topped the Explorers with 23.

Joe Hamilton's 35 points carried North Texas past Tulsa 93-77 at Denton, Tex. Depaul also won at home, downing Indiana 75-70 despite a 33-point outburst by Jim Harris.

Temple beat George Washington 90-72. Penn State whipped Cornell 83-67. Cincinnati trounced Wichita State 96-78 and Niagara crushed Brockport State 105-60 in other home court victories. Calvin Murphy scored 31 points for Niagara on 14 field goals and three fouls.

Toledo triumphed on the road over Kent State 73-47 as did Texas Christian over Arkansas 82-86 and Texas over Southern Methodist 96-83. Playing at home, Baylor shaded Texas Tech 47-46 and Rice downed Texas A&M 68-58.

Two free throws by Hal Green with two seconds left gave Valparaiso a 75-73 victory over Dartmouth at Hanover, N.H.

Bobby Hull Named Player Of Decade

NEW YORK (AP) — Dynamic Bobby Hull, the Chicago Black Hawks' record-shattering triggerman, was named hockey's Player of the Decade today in an Associated Press poll of the nation's sports writers and sportscaster.

Hull, who revived Chicago's National Hockey League fortunes in the booming '60s and topped the magic 50-goal mark four times in the process, outdistanced venerable Gordie Howe of the Detroit Red Wings in a two-man race for the award.

Ferrari, Porsche Practice At Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two of Europe's great names in auto racing, Ferrari and Porsche, begin jockeying for top starting positions today in the first round of practice and time trials for this weekend's 24 Hours of Daytona.

The two foreign team entries — five new Ferrari 512s and three streamlined Porsche 917s — have by far the fastest cars in an entry list that also includes an assortment of machinery from the United States and six other countries.

Pacers Edge New Orleans; Knicks Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Indiana Pacers had a difficult time maintaining their No. 1 record in pro basketball while the New York Knicks went about their No. 2 business the easy way.

The Pacers of the American Basketball Association barely stayed ahead of New Orleans 88-87 in Tuesday night's only ABA game. The victory gave the Pacers a 36-9 record, a .800 percentage.

The Knicks of the National Basketball Association routed the Boston Celtics 133-100 for their fourth consecutive victory and kept right on the heels of the Pacers with a 42-11 record and a .792 percentage.

In the only other NBA game, the Los Angeles Lakers walloped the San Diego Rockets 124-109.

Bill Keller's two free throws with eight seconds left gave Indiana, the Eastern Division leader, its victory at Indianapolis against the Western leader. The lead previously had changed 24 times with 21 ties.

Roger Brown had 28 points and Mel Daniels had 20 and 22 rebounds for Indiana while Mike Butler scored 23 for New Orleans.

Willis Reed and Walt Frazier each scored 24 points for the Knicks, who went ahead early and then ran away in a 37-20 third quarter that saddled Boston with its fourth defeat in a row.

Jerry West powered Los Angeles' success over San Diego with 41 points and 13 assists. The Lakers, in winning their fifth in a row, built a 74-59 half-time bulge.

Elvin Hayes' 25 points led the Rockets, who dropped their sixth straight and fell within one game of last place in the Western Division. Los Angeles moved to within three games of first-place Atlanta in the West.

Name Terry Martin Player Of Week

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Terry Martin of Miami, a 6-foot-8 senior from Greensburg, Ind., is the Mid-American Conference basketball player of the week.

Martin, who scored a career high 28 points in a win over Western Michigan, was selected by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters for his play against the Broncos and his defensive work in Miami's win over Dayton.

Ashe Is Refused Visa For Contest

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — American Negro tennis star Arthur Ashe today was refused a visa to compete in the South African Open Tennis Championships in March.

A government statement said, however, he will be allowed to play in South Africa as a member of a Davis Cup team.

TRAPPED GAS BLAST KILLS THREE MEN—Heavy equipment starts clearing away the debris after an explosion killed three men and reduced half a city block to rubble in the heart of Houma, a Louisiana city of 22,561. Mayor Charles Davidson said gas trapped between the basement and first floors of a building caused the blast.

Thieu Hedges On Tet Truce Plans

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that "in principle, and like every year, there will be a truce" for the Tet festival of the lunar new year on Feb. 6.

"However," Thieu said in a communique, "the government has not decided because there still is time to make the decision, and furthermore, the government still needs to observe the situation."

The Viet Cong already has announced a four-day cease-fire beginning Feb. 5.

Allied sources said that Thieu probably will declare a 24-hour cease-fire but will keep the South Vietnamese army on a full alert. A spokesman for the U.S. Command said American forces will observe the government's cease-fire as they have in past holiday periods.

South Vietnamese military headquarters announced that beginning Friday all except emergency leaves will be canceled for two weeks to insure that government troops are at their posts.

The enemy launched its biggest offensive of the war during Tet 1968 when 50 per cent of the South Vietnamese forces were on leave.

Allied intelligence analysts have said they expect the enemy to launch intensified rocket, mortar and commando attacks just before or just after Tet, but they do not anticipate a large-scale ground attack similar to the 1968 offensive.

GE Strike . . .

An AFL-CIO spokesman estimated that about 180 Ontario, Calif., GE employees have crossed picket lines and gone back to work, although he said 2,000 to 2,500 remain on strike in the Los Angeles area.

William Grotz, a spokesman for Hot Point, which has three GE subsidiary plants in the Chicago area, said 1,200 hourly workers have returned to their jobs since December—about one-third of the normal work force.

And the Lakeside, Vt., plant, a Defense Department supplier, said 1,081 out of 1,552 IUE employees are at work, a 30 per cent increase over the 40 per cent who originally refused to join in the walkout.

Some union officials claimed support for the national boycott of GE products organized last November by the AFL-CIO.

However, a spokesman for the medium-price range May Co. of Los Angeles, said: "If anything, it's been just the opposite. It seems when things get scarce or may become scarce, the people buy more. We're almost completely out of GE products now, but we aren't hurting because we have other lines. GE is probably suffering though."

Local Child Support Fund Up In '70

For the second straight year, a substantial increase in payments for support of minor children in divorce actions was noted by Sara M. Dresbach, Pickaway County Clerk of Courts.

A 14 per cent increase above 1969 was reported as $281,074.83 was paid through the Clerk of Courts office in 1969. This compared with $243,310.07 paid in 1968, an increase of $37,764.76.

Included in the amount for 1969 was $6,144.21 collected from fathers where families are on county welfare, thus reducing the welfare costs in such cases. Amounts collected for families on welfare are paid directly to the county welfare department.

Collections in 1969 were in 343 divorce cases involving minor children where either the cases are pending or in which the divorce has been granted.

In 1967 the legislature authorized the Common Pleas Court in each county to establish a bureau of support in order to facilitate and enforce support payments for minor children in divorce cases.

With the establishment of this bureau, when a person's support payments become overdue, the bureau notifies him directly and requests the amount be paid. Through this procedure, the mother need not retain legal counsel to enforce a support order. It is handled automatically by the bureau of support.

The effectiveness of the bureau in enforcing payments is apparent by the increase in payments during the last two years. In 1967, prior to the establishment of the bureau, $184,042.25 was paid for child support. This shows an increase of 35 per cent during the bureau's operation.

In addition to canceling leaves as a precaution against an enemy offensive, the South Vietnamese government lengthened curfews in some cities, including Can Tho, the biggest city and military base in the Mekong Delta.

To the southwest in the delta, South Vietnamese troops closed out an operation in the U Minh Forest and pulled out along the outer edge to block any enemy thrust.

Allied forces claimed they killed 86 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in a half dozen clashes during the past 24 hours. Allied casualties were one South Vietnamese soldier killed and 10 wounded.

No American casualties were reported in U.S. communiques.

Meanwhile, more than 500 U.S. Marines sailed from Da Nang for San Diego aboard the transport Ogden. They are the first of the 50,000 American troops President Nixon has ordered withdrawn by April 15.

Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency said Pathet Lao forced down two U.S. aircraft over the Laotian Province of Kiang Khuang last Dec. 22-23. The broadcast said this brings the total number of U.S. aircraft downed over Laos to 1,196.

Congressman Says Lottery Would Hurt Crime Syndicate

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A New Hampshire congressman whose state sponsors a sweepstakes, says a national lottery could drain off money now being pumped into organized crime's treasury.

Rep. Louis C. Wyman, calling a national lottery "a form of taxation that would be paid with a smile," said he is studying the feasibility of a federally sanctioned numbers drawing.

The Republican congressman figures it could gross $7 billion to $10 billion annually—with participating states sharing in the revenue.

"It also would cut the guts out of the illegal numbers operation that provides billions of dollars for organized crime," Wyman, the former head of the National Association of State Attorneys General, added in an interview.

He is considering entering legislation, he said, but first "the mechanics of a national lottery proposal need to be worked out."

"No longer can it be said a public lottery offends public morality," he said. "The principal issue is whether it would work and would be of unimpeachable integrity" in its administration and operating techniques.

The New Hampshire sweepstakes program is pegged to the results of horse races.

However, Wyman's ideas on a national lottery envision the federal government holding regular drawings based on number selection. He said he has not settled on the specific of the selection process.

States would have to approve placing federal lottery outlets within their borders, and participating states would receive a guaranteed minimum plus a percentage share of the net proceeds, he said.

The New Hampshire sweepstakes is a modern pioneer in such a state-sponsored operation and has been popular at the polls, where voters must approve sales of tickets in their communities.

Derby Church Youth Plan Drug Program

A community program on drugs will be held 3:30 p.m. Feb. 8, at Derby School sponsored by the Youth Fellowship Church.

Officer Fred Miller of the Franklin County Sheriff's Department will head the program entitled "Drugs — What You Should Know." Miller works with teenagers in the Columbus area who have or have had a drug problem. Scheduled to appear with him are two teenagers who will be able to relate their own experiences with drugs. All parents and youth are invited to attend.

Auto Theft Ring Is Broken Up By State Patrol

ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — An auto theft ring that stole about 60 cars in three months in Lorain, Medina and Cuyahoga counties has been broken by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

The patrol said Tuesday that 28 juveniles and five adults were involved. Officers said the cars were taken for "joy rides". Seven juveniles have been arrested and are in the juvenile detention home here. More arrests were expected after facts are presented to the Lorain County prosecutor Friday, the patrol said.

Some cars were stripped of accessories and personal belongings, including clothing, shotguns and, in one case, $200 in cash, the patrol said. Six of the cars were wrecked, causing some $70,000 damage.

The juveniles, 13 to 17 years old, are students in the Midview and Kevstone school districts in Lorain County, the patrol said.

OK Funds For Project

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Hamilton county commissioners were expected to appropriate $4 million today as their share of a proposed $34 million flood and anti-pollution control project for a 20 mile stretch of the Mill Creek valley between Cincinnati and the Butler county line.

The State of Ohio Tuesday committed $5 million to the project in a ceremony here witnessed by Gov. James A. Rhodes, Fred E. Morr, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources and William H. Zimmer, president of the Millcreek Valley Conservancy District and head of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., signed the agreement.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers will formally request another $25 million in federal funds for the project which will clear 800 acres of flood plain area for industrial development and cut down flooding damage. The project also calls for cleaning up sewage and industrial wastes in the Mill Creek.

Thieu Hedges On Tet Truce Plans

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today that "in principle, and like every year, there will be a truce" for the Tet festival of the lunar new year on Feb. 6.

"However," Thieu said in a communique, "the government has not decided because there still is time to make the decision, and furthermore, the government still needs to observe the situation."

The Viet Cong already has announced a four-day cease-fire beginning Feb. 5.

Allied sources said that Thieu probably will declare a 24-hour cease-fire but will keep the South Vietnamese army on a full alert. A spokesman for the U.S. Command said American forces will observe the government's cease-fire as they have in past holiday periods.

South Vietnamese military headquarters announced that beginning Friday all except emergency leaves will be canceled for two weeks to insure that government troops are at their posts.

The enemy launched its biggest offensive of the war during Tet 1968 when 50 per cent of the South Vietnamese forces were on leave.

Allied intelligence analysts have said they expect the enemy to launch intensified rocket, mortar and commando attacks just before or just after Tet, but they do not anticipate a large-scale ground attack similar to the 1968 offensive.

GE Strike . . .

An AFL-CIO spokesman estimated that about 180 Ontario, Calif., GE employees have crossed picket lines and gone back to work, although he said 2,000 to 2,500 remain on strike in the Los Angeles area.

William Grotz, a spokesman for Hot Point, which has three GE subsidiary plants in the Chicago area, said 1,200 hourly workers have returned to their jobs since December—about one-third of the normal work force.

And the Lakeside, Vt., plant, a Defense Department supplier, said 1,081 out of 1,552 IUE employees are at work, a 30 per cent increase over the 40 per cent who originally refused to join in the walkout.

Some union officials claimed support for the national boycott of GE products organized last November by the AFL-CIO.

However, a spokesman for the medium-price range May Co. of Los Angeles, said: "If anything, it's been just the opposite. It seems when things get scarce or may become scarce, the people buy more. We're almost completely out of GE products now, but we aren't hurting because we have other lines. GE is probably suffering though."
